REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The delegates to the Republican County Convention who were elected on Saturday, August 22d, will meet in Reynold's Hall, on TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6th,

at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of nominating a ticket to be supported at the ensuing November election.

D. H. HASTINGS,
Chair'n Rep. Co. Con.

POLITICAL NOTES.

—The Democracy make a long campaign to enable them to explain their political sins and short comings.

—Hon. Alex. A. Stephens has been nominated for Congress by his Georgia frinds. Alexander is a "salary grabber."

—The peoples' State convention of Missouri nominated a full ticket, and the prospects for its success are roported good.

—The wiseman who presides over the Watchman takes great offence because we consider it our privilege to criticise the doings of the Bellefonte Ring Democrats.

—The Democratic senatorial candidates in the Centre, Clinton and Clearfield district are growing more desperate every day, and propose to have a whooping war dance on 24th inst. P. Gray Meek is offering himself as floor manager.

—The Harrisburg Patriot is throwing itself into spasms over the nominations made by the Republican State Convention. This is sure proof that our candidates are popular, and will carry the "Old Keystone" by a large majority in November.

—The Democratic press enlarges on the "significance" of the late elections in the South. If they are significant of one thing more than another, it is of the fact that the Southern wing of that party is still unmistakably pronounced against the conclusions of the war.

—The Republican press throughout the State, are a unit in their endorsement of the Republican State Ticket.—The prospect for a glorious victory in November next, grows brighter every day, and the Democracy already can see the "handwriting on the wall!"

—It is the hope of the Democracy of Pennsylvania that they may divert enough temperance votes from the Republican ticket to secure the Legislature and a Democratic successor to Senator Scott. A similar game is attempted in New York. Forewarned is forearmed.

—Our neighbor over the way is busy looking after Senatorial Conferees. If there are any persons in the 34th Senatorial District who have two or three to dispose of, either modoc or regular, they will hear something to their advantage by calling at the office of the Watchman.

—The Watchman is so hard up for material to enable it to misrepresent the Republican party, that it devotes a portion of its time in publishing the names of Republicans, without authority, as now being Democrats, and who we know disclaim any such intentions. Te, he! he! he!"

—Nearly if not quite all the Republicans who switched off and went to the liberal camp two years ago, are now acting with the Republican party. Those who are taking no active part, have expressed themselves as being in full sympathy with the Republican party as against the Democratic party.

—Great is Barnum. In response to a request from the temperance people of Philadelphia for the use of his Hippodrome for a temperance meeting tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon he responded extending its free use, and pledging himself "to be there in person to raise his voice with theirs against the curse of intemperance."—Chronicle.

—Hon. Simeon B. Chase peremptorily declines the Prohibitionist's nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. He says: "I regard it as vital to the enforcement and maintenance of our present law that our Republican ticket should be elected this Fall, and no honorable effort of mine shall be spared to secure this end."

POLITICAL HUMBUGGERY.

We have heard of various ways of electioneering—of the different arts and practices of the crafty politician. Politics is a trade where the most ingenious workman has the callous on his conscience, instead of his hands. Political capital consists largely in scrip, bobs for popularity, and a mind gridironed with schemes and drop-pigeons on the ram-ways. The present age is full of inventions, and the superior politician succeeds better without going through the patent office with his creations. Corporations have no souls, it is said, and their heads or finger-boards have been known to lack that article when considered politically. Physically or spiritually they may make some pretention, however, as we have but recently noticed.

In Clinton county a camp-meeting has been going on for some time, and a certain railroad president has been using it's advantages and comforts not only in a spiritual sense, but also in a political, and this is how he did it: He kept things quiet until Saturday morning, when he thought he would startle the natives along the Bald Eagle valley with his generosity and thereby make votes for the anticipating congressman. He flashed the news over the wires that the christian people along his railroad should not be deprived of religious privileges if he could carry them by special train to the Wayne Camp-meeting on the following Sabbath, even if he did charge the farmers six cents per ton per mile for shipping wheat over the road. Accordingly, the special train left Tyrone shortly after six o'clock on Sunday morning, and the five passenger cars hove into Bellefonte shortly after seven with just fourteen passengers aboard. The number may have increased to one hundred before Lock Haven was reached, but if the investment don't pay any better politically than it did to the railroad Company, some more subtle religious enterprise will have to be invented before the people along the Bald Eagle valley will see the point.

It is doubtful if Cyce Alexander or even P. Gray Meek would have thought of such a scheme, and we are sure that pious Andy Reed, of Mifflin, would not burden his conscience with such trickery. Besides that, neither of them have the control of railroads, banks and camp-meetings at their backs to boost them forward politically.

THE DEMOCRACY.

There are persons still living who firmly believe that the old frigate Constitution could, in a fair sea-fight, sink the best iron clad that floats. They forget that time has wrought changes, and refuse to believe that the glorious old ship that carried our flag through a hundred victories has become so rotten in her timbers and worm eaten in her planks that a first-class wave would destroy what once defied the heaviest guns of England. So with the old Democratic ship. It has its warm admirers who believe it as strong as when Jefferson launched it, and as capable of great triumphs as when Jackson won for its name honor and glory. They forget that time has dealt unkindly with what was once strong and praiseworthy, that the oak ribs of Jackson's time have hardly strength enough to hold the paint and putty of these latter days. It is no injustice to its early record to say that the old hulk is thoroughly rotten, as unfit to be the flag-ship of public policy as a sieve would be to cross the ocean in a gale of wind. We have nothing but praise to bestow on the earlier days of Democracy. We make war, not on its honorable record, but on its dishonorable career. If we are glad to remember that it once felt the influence of patriots, and statesmen, and earnest friends of freedom, we can not thereby shut out the fact of its degeneracy or blind ourselves to the knowledge of its present management and its recent treasonable efforts to destroy what it once helped to build. We support the Republicun party for what it is to-day, and boast of its glorious past because its present is no dishonor to it. What the party was it now is, and we hope will be a score of years to come.

We denounce Democracy for what it has done during the past fifteen years of our national life, and for what it is now doing where it has the power to act. We believe it is the enemy of good government and that its return to power would do more harm than a second rebellion.

Who can hesitate in making choice between Democracy and Republicanism? Surely no true friend of his country can turn his back on a party whose past and present record are equally worthy of praise, and whose capacity for every needed governmental reform is greater than ever. To permit Democracy, with its recent infamous political record, to come again into power would show, on the part of the American character, a degeneracy which we hope will not be recorded for at least a century to come. We have faith in the Republic, and in the noble party which now guides it to a higher plane of civilization. The ascendency of the Republican party means the future glory of the nation.

"THE GOOD OLD TIMES."

We shall soon hear from Democratic writers and speakers a clamor for a return to "good old times." Many a hungry politician will hear the sound and believe it the promise of the good time coming when the cry, "I am a Democrat!" will open to the faithful the fattest offices of the land. No doubt Tweed, the dethroned king of Tammany, as he sits with striped suit and shaved head in his forced retirement and moralizes over the degeneracy of the times, looks forward to the hour when the Democratic wand shall open his prison doors and reinstate him in the political kingdom which he has lost. We have no desire to welcome the return of the "good old times." We have had enough of them. They cost us over $3,000,000,000 and over half a million lives. We are doing our best to repair the injury, and hope in less than a score of years to wipe out the last trace of Democratic misrule. We have reduced the debt nearly $400,000,000 in a little over five years, and shall continue its reduction until every cent is paid. But we protest against the return of the times which forced this burden on the nation. Once in a thousand years we might endure a like experience, but to go through it again during the present century would tax good nature beyond the point of endurance. We might live through an epidemic, be tranquil over the escape of Tweed, read the details of the Brooklyn scandal every day in the year, but nothing short of a direct interposition of Providence could make us submit with cheerfulness to the good old times of Democracy. May the sacrifice never be called for.

VERMONT ELECTION.

Judge Peck, the Republican candidate for Governor has been elected by the usual Vermont majority after making allowance for a light vote. The House is overwhelmingly Republican, and the Senate very nearly unanimous the same way.

One hundred and ten towns return 81 Republicans to the Legislature, to 24 Democrats, there being no choice in five.

The vote for Governor, in 113 towns, stands: Peck, 20,004, Bingham, 8,501. In 1872 the vote, in the same towns, was: Converse, 24,-636, Heaten, (Dem.) 10,513.

THE triumph of the Democracy in Connecticut and New Hampshire last spring will not be so bad a calamity after all, if, as it appears likely to do, it opens the eyes of the people to the rottenness of the Democratic party. It is already bringing home to the people such an overwhelming disgust, that the Republican party will not lack recruits by the thousands when the great struggle of 1876 comes. It has proved to them, as if it were sent for the express purpose of doing it, the absolute absurdity of Democratic professions.

ROBBERY NEAR RALSTON.

A Brave Woman Shakes the Plunder from the Thief.

The Elmira Advertiser says: A family by the name of Hurtel lives near Ralston, Pa. Last Friday, Mrs. Hurtel and her daughters were out berrying, about a mile south of their home. Their house was left unoccupied, but locked. During their absence, a man dressed in a black coat, light colored pantaloons and wearing a summer hat with a wide band, walked to the house. It was in the broad day-light, and he seemed quite at home. He succeeded in getting in at a window and went down cellar, whence it was comparatively easy to get into the upper part of the house. He made a pretty thorough search over the premises, finally entering Mrs. Hurtel's bed-room. Here he ransacked very industriously the bureau, and while engaged in this operation Mrs. Hurtel returned. Upon going into the house, one of the daughters observed to her mother that she thought she heard a suspicious noise in the bed-room. Mrs. Hurtel immediately proceeded to make investigation, and as she entered the room, the chap above described, crawled out from under the bed. He very piteously begged to be let alone and not hurt, and claimed that he had taken nothing. Mrs. Hurtel took him by the throat and shook him as a terrier would shake a big rat, directing one of her daughters to go for her father and brother who were in the woods at a short distance. While the girl was gone, the man got away from Mrs. Hurtel and ran to the mountains, escaping entirely. The reason he got away, was because the brave woman shook him so heartily that she shook his hat off his head, and from the hat dropped her son's pocket-book and some money. In her endeavor to secure these, she let go her hold upon the thief and he, seizing the opportunity, lit out. He could beat her running anyhow.

The thief was seen about a mile north of Roaring Branch Saturday morning at seven o'clock, but has not been heard of since, and the robbery occurred Friday afternoon between three and four o'clock.

THE Governor of Louisiana tells the true story of the latest "War of Races," which may be summed up in a few words as follows: The Democracy of Coushatta undertook to compel the officers of the parish, who are Republicans, to resign. They refused to do so, of course, and organized resistance. Thereupon the whites arrested the colored leaders, some thirteen in number, including the sheriff, the collector, register, and other officials, and had them thrown into gaol. Subsequently, whilst being removed to Shreveport, they were taken from the custody of the guard by a mob of white ruffians, and murdered. The Governor has offered a reward of $5,000 a head for the apprehension of all the persons implicated in this fiendish affair.

THE New York "Tribune" thinks that the most amusing spectacle in politics just now is the position of the Democratic journals upon the currency question. The hard money advocates, confined mostly to the Middle and Eastern States, scramble up on their free trade, hard money and home rule platform, turn their backs upon Indiana, Ohio and Missouri, and shout themselves hoarse with all "Hail Illinois!" "Look at Pennsylvania!" The Western wing of the party unfurls the banner of inflation and repudiation, and denouncing all of its opposing brethren as the "minions of Wall street," sets itself up as the only true Democratic party.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS REUNION.—It is proposed to hold a grand Reunion of all honorably discharged Soldiers and Sailors from all sections of the country in Easton, on the 24th of September. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance. The plan of Reunion as adopted by the general committee, is as follows:

1. All honorably discharged soldiers or sailors upon their arrival will register their names at Head Quarters, Bell Post Hall, South Third Street, where they will be met by the Reception Committee and provided with a badge and card of invitation for the banquet in the evening.
2. At two o'clock in the afternoon an address of welcome and response will be delivered in Centre Square, followed by a short street parade.
3. At seven o'clock a general meeting will be organized, and a pleasant time spent in listening to speeches and reminiscences from such gentlemen as may be called upon, and at nine o'clock a banquet will be served to which all will be provided with card of admission.

FOREIGN NEWS.

England.

THE GOVERNMENT PUSHING SPAIN TO A SETTLEMENT OF THE VIRGINIUS MATTER.

Additional correspondence between the British Government and her representative at Madrid, concerning the Virginius outrage, is published. Mr. MacDonnel, the Charge d'Affairs, writes to Lord Derby, July 9th, that the Spanish Government appeals to England to defer pressing a settlement of her claims, on account of the negotiations pending with the United States. Spain will be hampered in dealing with the latter power if the American Government is able to cite as a precedent the payment of indemnity to England. Lord Derby replies, July 17, demanding that a settlement be made by a fixed and not too distant date. Mr. MacDonnel telegraphed to Lord Derby, August 10, that Senor Ulloa, the Spanish Minister of Foreign Affairs, agrees that the indemnity shall be settled immediately under certain reservations.

ARREST OF AN EX-UNITED STATES CONSUL AND WIFE.

PARIS, September 7.—Charles Perkins, formerly United States Consul at Lisbon, and wife, were before the Correctional Tribunal of Seine on Saturday, on a charge of obtaining 30,000 francs under false pretension. It is charged that Perkins obtained the money by the allegation that he had a concession for the cable between Spain and England; that he was negotiating a loan for Don Carlos, and was engaged in other moneyed transactions. Judgment will be given to-morrow.

Portugal.

LISBON, September 7.—The Portugese Minister of the Interior has issued a notice that the Arabian ports on the Red sea are infested with the plague.

CONCERNING the idea that the whole colored race may some day be sent out of the country, the Hartford Currant argues that the plantations could not be worked without the labor of the freedmen, or that Southern industry could not get on at all if its colored laborers were deported. It seems to us, therefore, that Dr. Winkler's hope of relief by the deportation of these millions of men, women and children is a vainer dream than that of the African Colonization Society, which expected to carry them all in ships to Africa. This problem of the movement of the race is too big for man to grapple with. He can only wait the developement of events by Providence. But he can, meantime, be just and humane. No course is left for the whites of the United States, in this strange bringing together of separate races, but to treat all men in a Christian spirit, giving to all fair chance in the race for life, and making all men equal under the law. Any other course will, it seems to us, turn the South into a hell, speedily.—Baltimore American.

SINGULAR RECOVERY OF A PRAYER BOOK.

The Peekskill Messenger relates the following: "In the year 1862 a young gentleman of our village, residing in the South, was conscripted into the Confederate army. He had in his possession a book of common prayer presented by his mother in 1856. The corps to which our friend was ordered marched for Corinth. After remaining in Corinth from March 3 to April 3, 1865, his corps was ordered to Shiloh, and before going into the fight the men were ordered to pile their knapsacks, with other surplus articles, in a neighboring field. The action lasted from Sunday morning until Monday night, ending in a complete rout of the Confederates, when, of course, the knapsacks were left behind, the property of the Federals, and in our friend's knapsack was the prayer book. After a lapse of eleven years, a gentleman of our village visited Macon, Ga., with his wife, and while there attended church for the purpose of witnessing a wedding. While seated in a pew, awaiting the arrival of the bridal party, the lady picked up a prayer-book to find the marriage ceremony, and incidentally turning to the fly-leaf found written thereon, "Charles, from his mother, September 3, 1856," while in the corner were the initials, "C. E. S." On the next leaf was written, "Abner P. Whittle, Macon, Ga., 1865, given to him by a Yankee soldier." The lady recognized the initials, and determined if possible, to restore the book to its owner. Accordingly, Mr. Whittle was awaited upon, and at first declined returning the book, because it had been given to him by a Northern soldier to whom he had shown considerable kindness while sick. Finally he was induced to part with it, and the book found its way to the hands of the original owner in Peekskill."

Poetry.

"CURFEW MUST NOT RING TO-NIGHT."

The following ballad, to which reference was made in a recent editorial in the Companion is published in answer to a request from several subscribers. Its author is not known:

Slowly England's sun was setting o'er the hilltop far away,
Filling all the land with beauty at the close of one sad day,
And the rays kissed the forehead of a man and maiden fair,—
He with footsteeps slow and weary, she with sunny, floating hair;
He with bowed head, sad and thoughtful, she with lips all cold and white
Struggled to keep back the murmur,—
"Curfew must not ring to-night."

"Sexton," Bessie's white lips faltered, pointing to the prison old,
With its turrets tall and gloomy, with its walls
dark, damp and cold,
"I've a lover in that prison, doomed this very night to die;
At the ringing of the Curfew, and no earthly help is nigh;
Cromwell will not come till sunset," and her lips grew strangely white
As she breathed the husky whisper,—
"Curfew must not ring to-night."

"Bessie," carmly spoke the sexton, every word
peirced the young heart
Like the piercing of an arrow, like a deadly, poisoned dart,
"Long, long years I've rung the curfew from that gloomy, shadowed tower;
Every evening just at sunset it has told the twilight hour;
I have done my duty ever, tried to do just and right,
Now I'm old I still must do it,
Curfew must ring to-night."

Wild her eyes and pale her features, stern and white her thoughtful brow,
And within her secret bosom Bessie made a solemn vow.
She had listened while the judge read without a tear or sigh,
"At the ringing of the curfew, Basil Underwood must die."
And her breath came fast and faster, and her eyes grew large and bright—
In an undertone she murmured,—
"Curfew must not ring to-night."

She with quick steps bounded forward, sprang within the old church door,
Left the old man treading slowly paths so oft
he had trod before;
Not one moment paused the maiden, but with eye and cheek aglow,
Mounted up the gloomy tower, where the bell
swung to and fro,
And she climbed the dusty ladder on which fell no ray of light,
Up and up,—her white lips saying—
"Curfew shall not ring to-night."

She has reached the topmost ladder, and o'er hangs the great dark bell;
Awful is the gloom beneath her, like a pathway down to hell.
Lo, the ponderous tongue is swinging, 'tis the hour of curfew now,
And the sight has chilled her bosom, stopped her breath and paled her brow.
Shall she let it ring? No, never! Flash her eyes with sudden light,
And she springs and grasps it firmly—
"Curfew shall not ring to-night."

Out she swung, far out, the city seemed a speck of light below,
'Twixt heaven and earth her form suspended,
as the bell swung to and fro,
And the sexton at the bell-rope, old and deaf,
heard not the bell,
But he thought it still was ringing fair young
Basil's funeral knell.
Still the maiden clung more firmly, and with trembling lips and white,
Said to hush her hearts wild beating,—
"Curfew shall ring not to-night."

It was o'er, the bell ceased swaying, and the maiden stepped once more Firmly on the dark old ladder, where for hundred years before,
Human foot had not been planted. The brave deed that she had done
Should be told long ages after, as the rays of setting sun
Should illume the sky with beauty; aged sires with heads of white,
Long st ould tell the little children,
Curfew did not ring that night.

O'er the distant hill comes Cromwell; Bessie sees him, and her brow,
Full of hope and full of gladness, has no anxious traces now.
At his feet she tells her story, shows her hands
all bruised and torn;
And her face so sweet and pleading, yet with sorrow pale and worn,
Touched his heart with sudden pity, lit his eye
with misty light:
"Go, your lover lives," said Cromwell.
"Curfew shall not ring to-night!"

"FORGET-ME-NOT."

When Psyche lost her Lord, the Lord of love,
Weeping alone she wandered,
Listless by every well-known field and grove,
And on her lost Love pondered.

Lastly by Lethe's stream her footsteps strayed;
And "Oh!" she said, in sighing,
"That I might dip, and my past life be made Like dreams with daylight dying!"

The big tears from her blue eyes raining down
Fell on earth's pitying bosom;
Sudden there sprang amid the sedges brown
Blue as her eyes a blossom.

And o'er her head, soft rustling sweet and low,
As though some bird's wings fluttered,
In those loved tones whose loss was all her woe,
"Forget-me-not!" was uttured.

No more: no sign, no touch: these words alone:
And "Ah!" she cried, "forget thee?
Nay, but half Love in our glad life was not known;
Half love is to regret thee.

"Forget thee? Nay, these flowers my tears begot
Shall be to man a token
Of Love: they shall be called Forget-me-not,
The words to cheer me spoken."

So well, sweet river-flowers, we welcome you,
Earth with faint sadness scenting,—
Born of the tears of Psyche's eyes of blue,
For her lost love lamenting.

A KISS TO THE BRIDE.

Sacred, blithsome, undenied,
With benisons from East and West,
And solutions North and South,
Through me indeed to-day a million hearts and hands,
Waiting a million loves, a million soul-felt prayers;
—Tender and true remain the arm that shields thee!
Fair winds always fill the ship's sails that sail
thee!
Clear sun by day, and bright stars by night,
beam on thee!
Dear girl—through me the ancient privilege too,
For the New World through me, the old, old wedding greeting;
O youth and health! O sweet Missouri rose! O
bonny bride!
Yield thy red cheeks, thy lips, to-day,
Into a Nation's loving kiss.

—Walt Whitman.

Some one has got hold of the newspaper bore and set him to music, as follows:—

He drops into an easy chair,
And asks about the news;
And peers into my manuscript,
And gives his candid views;
He tells me where he likes the line,
And where he's forced to grieve,
He takes the strangest liberties,
But never takes his leave.

Little Johny has flown above,
To meet his Maker with peace and love;
He died in the little town of Wellon,
By eating too much watermellon.

Our Story Teller.

A STORY OF THE CRUSADE.

BY REV. E. P. ROE.

With a dignity and impressiveness which he had even never possessed upon the bench. The aroused wife silenced him with a gesture.

"You are not equal to this matter, Judge Ashman," she said, "nor are your legal forms. During the past night I have seen my own grave open, and in it buried life, youth, happiness. What is far worse, I have seen the yawning grave of my husband, that I know it to be the mouth of hell. And do you ask me to go to law about such matters? Harry Hill and his kind are digging these graves. I never realized it before. Surely, he will cease his wild traffic when I tell him the truth. I tell you I will go, if I go alone! You may as well ask the lightning not to strike when the storm is at its height."

"George," cried Mrs. Ashman in a voice of anguish, "how often has your own son been drunk at that same Harry Hill's?"

The Judge turned pale and abruptly left the room.

"You shall not go alone," continued Mrs. Ashman, sobbing on Mrs. Elliott's shoulder; "a score of women that I know of, smitten by this terrible curse, will go with you if you lead the way. Some are rich and some are poor, but we all have common ground in this matter. I will send them word."

After a little consultation it was arranged that we should start from Mrs. Judge Ashman's at eleven. Much as I shrank from the undertaking, I determined to remain by the side of my beloved Mrs. Elliott. We called on a few personal friends and stated our purpose, but so far from joining us they seemed dismayed at the very idea.

Mrs. Elliott then returned to her unconcious husband. One look at him seemed to turn her delicate frame into steel, and at a little before eleven she walked to Mrs. Ashman's with as firm a tread as ever a soldier marched into battle.

I shall never forget the group that we found assembled in the Judge's parlor. There were young faces present besides that of Mrs. Elliott. But all were pale and lined with care—all were solemn with an earnest purpose, and touched with the pathos of suffering.

"Ladies this is Mrs. Elliott;" said Mrs. Ashman, simply.

All rose to receive their leader, and she assumed control with the simplicity and dignity which only noble natures can attain.

"In the main you are strangers to me," she said, "but our common danger and our common wrong knit our souls together as one.

The evil which now threatens our lives and homes has grown so desperate that it seems to require a desperate remedy. It seems a terrible cross for us week, timid women to go on this mission. It brings back to us the days of martyrdom. Yesterday I thought I would rather die than do this. Now I feel that I would die if I did not go, for a dearer life than mine is at peril; I believe that I but imperfectly express the feelings of each one here. God seems to be enabling our sisters in other places to save their dear ones. In his name let us go forth to like rescue, and before we go, let us kneel to Him in silent prayer for help and guidance."

We knelt, but the prayer was not silent. There were sobs and greans and involuntary cries.

At last we sallied forth, pale, but as determined a little phalanx as ever assaulted a death-swept breach. It was sleeting, but we carried no umbrellas. This was no pleasure excursion. We marched as soldiers do.

Our appearance on the street soon attracted attention. People spoke hurriedly together.

"By thunder it's broke out here!" one man exclaimed. "I wonder where they will strike first."

"Harry Hill's, as you live," was answered, "for that's Vint. Elliott's wife a leadin."

The news spread fast, and soon we had an ample but nondescript following. Still the crowd was respectful. The worst man who had caught a glimpse of Mrs. Elliott's face could not have been otherwise.

By turning a corner we came suddenly upon the entrance of Hill's saloon. There was a bustle within as if they would lock the door against us, but we were too prompt for them, and entered. The crowd thronged in after us, and with those already there, filled the place completely.

Mrs. Elliott advanced at once to the bar and we grouped ourselves around her, and such a group as had never been seen in our city before.

"Where is Mr. Hill?" asked our leader in a firm voice.

The bar-tenders stared at her a moment in blank dismay, and then called out:

"Mr. Hill, here, quick, for God's sake!"

"Yes, tell him to come for God's sake and humanity's" said Mrs. Elliott, giving deep meaning to the fellow's profanity.

"What the devil does this mean?" asked Mr. Hill, appearing from an inner room with a face on which surprise and anger contended for the mastery. He was a florid, low-browed, thick-set man, showily dressed, and with a hard sinister eye. After one glance at him, I hoped little from Mrs. Elliott's appeal. I turned to look at the crowd for a moment in order to see on whose side their sympathy would assert itself, but the expression at this time was mainly one of eager curiosity and excitement. But imagine my unmeasured surprise when I saw a side door open and Vinton Elliott appear overlooking the scene, with a white, appalled face. But all were too intent on the scene before them to note his entrance, for with a voice that trembled, and yet with dignity, Mrs. Elliott had commenced speaking:

"Mr. Hill, you have the form and semblance of a man, and we give you the credit of possessing the heart of one. You can not realize the results of your trafic as we poor women can whose homes you are destroying, whose hearts you are breaking. What is life to us if fathers, our brothers, our sons, our husbands (oh how her voice thrilled at that word) go down into the darkness and infamy of a drunkard's grave! Can you not see that such life would be to us but living death and prolonged agony? And yet not for ourselves are we pleading, but for those whom you are destroying. Perhaps we may find a heaven hereafter, but they can not. You poison body and soul at once. We are desperate in view of the peril of those we love. Yesterday there was not, in all the city, a more proud and happy woman than I! happy in my husband's hopes for the future; proud of his rich promise and good name! But now my heart is breaking; oh how it has ached since you sent him staggering to me long past midnight! What hell-broth could have so changed my noble, manly husband? Yesterday, they all honored him. To-day, the finger of the town will be pointed at him. Oh! believe me, sir, a few dollars can not pay for inflicting all this shame and misery. I beseech you, sir, promise me that you will never sell another drop of this accursed poison."

There was a momentary and a death-like silence, and then Hill, with difficulty, found his brazen voice.

"Now look here, madam," he began "I've got my rights as well as you and other people. This is my business. You've no right here interfering with it. These are my premises. You've no right here without my consent. You all make yourselves liable to indictment for tresspass. Besides, it ain't the right thing for ladies to go tramping through the streets followed by a rabble, and meddling with things that don't concern them. It isn't ladylike. It's fanat—"

"Hush! in a word, answer me!" cried Mrs. Elliott in a voice that went to every heart like an arrow. "Will you not promise me never to sell my husband another glass of liquor?"

"No!" shouted Hill, "nor any other woman's husband. I will sell to all who'll pay."

There was suddenly a hoarse murmuring on the part of the crowd, but in a moment it was hushed, for the insulted wife had knelt on the floor before the bar. We all dropped on our knees around her.

"O God," she pleaded in a tone that must have thrilled the very soul of the most hardened present; "Shall human love and human anguish plead before thee in vain? Art thou a God of mercy, and yet cruelty is crushing us? Art thou a God of justice, and yet we are being robbed of all that makes life endurable?

Thou didst preserve in the furnace seven times heated. Beneath our church spires burns the more remorseless and destructive passion of avarice. Wilt Thou not break the stony heart before us, and bend his stubborn will to Thine? Thou knowest that because of our love we could die for our dear ones, but we believe that Thou doest love them even more. Wilt Thou not in mercy change their destroyers into men? Wilt thou not take this awful soul-killing temptation out of their path? We plead in the name of thy dear Son, who gave His life for us all. Amen.

Strange to say there was a responsive "Amen" from the rough crowd that would have done honor to a Methodist "class meeting," and as I looked around on rising, I saw many eyes wet with tears where I only had expected looks of scorn. I did not dare meet Mr. Elliott's eye, though he remained standing spell-bound in the door-way still.

But the tragedy went forward without a moment's pause. Mrs. Elliott took a step nearer the rum-seller, pointed up with an impressive gesture, and bent upon him a look such as I never saw on a woman's face before, for a mirror in the bar opposite revealed the form and feature perfectly, and gave her back to the audience as a startling picture. Hill tried to meet her eye; he could not, for his sank guiltily and confusedly to the floor.

"Mr. Hill," she said in a low, gentle voice, and yet it reminded me of the "still, small voice of God," it was so penetrating and awe-inspiring, "once more I ask you, I beseech you, answer me as you will wish you had answered when we stand before His judgement seat, will you not cease this dreadful business?"

A death-like hush followed. Hill was evidently cowed and overcome, and after a moment mumbled out.

"It's not in any man to resist you, madam. I promise I will not sell any more to your husband, though he will get it somewhere else if he wants it. I think it's a pity he can't stand up for himself without sending his wife around praying and beseeching for him."

"Give way there," cried Vinton Elliott's voice, and he sprang down from from the raised doorstep and struggled towards his wife. There were murmurs and ejaculations of intense excitement on the part of the crowd as this new element entered into the drama and all gave way before him. Mrs. Elliott started and trembled violently at his voice, and the monent he reached her, clung to his arm and hid her face sobbingly on his shoulder. All her wonderful nerve and self-control seemed gone. In a clear ringing tone, Elliott said:

'Mr. Hill, you have spoken some true words this morning. This is no place—this no action for ladies like my wife and other honored women I see here; and believe me they would not be here, if you and I, and our like, had not driven them to desperation. God knows we have enough to answer for but you alone are not to blame. You can't force us to throw away our money and manhood here. If half is true that I have read concerning myself in the morning paper, I wonder that my wife did not leave me forever in utter disgust. Instead of that, with woman's faithfulness, she comes here to plead for my safety. But she will never be called to go through such an ordeal again. I thought I could drink with moderation at your bar, as I had for years, but you have taught me better, sir. Vinton Elliott can stand alone, but he will stand aloof from you and your kind. God, and you, fellow citizens, be my witnesses that I will drink no more, and may He palsy my hand if it ever raises another glass of liquor to my lips.'

Mrs. Elliott gave a low, glad cry.

'I make no apology for what occurred last night,' he continued. 'The case admits of none. I deserve your contempt, but it cannot exceed that which I have for myself. Were it not for my wife and the hope of retrieving my character, I would gladly die.'

'Hurrah! three cheers for Elliott, who faces the matter like a man!' cried a voice from the crowd, and they were given with good will.

Mrs. Judge Ashman now came forward and said:

'Mr. Hill this won't answer. My son is as dear to me as Mrs. Elliott's husband to her. We all represent some imperilled member of our households. You must promise to quit the business altogether in our city.'

'Do you see that? asked a pale, thin woman, a mechanic's wife, and she lifted her hair showed an ugly scar across her temple. 'My husband, once so kind and good, gave me that blow. It went in deep. It nearly cost me my life. But it made a deeper scar on my heart. People must stop selling rum to my husband or I can't live. I feel that I will do something desperate.

'Oh please do promise, Mr. Hill, pleaded a meek-looking little woman, with streaming eyes. 'My only son has come home drunk twice of late, and he says he got the liquor here.'

'Now look here, ladies,' said Mr. Hill, trying to work himself into a passion, 'business is business. A man must live. I've stood this longer now than—'

He was interrupted by a tall, gaunt women who strongly reminded me of the stern old prophets. Without a word of prelude, she stepped forward and commenced singing in a weird minor key:

O Thou who for humanity
Wept blood at every pore,
We come in kindred agony
Thy mercy to implore,

Must we, for aye, sigh hopelessly,
In worse than Egypt's bonds?
Must we despairing, hopelessly
Endure destroying wounds?

Most fearful is our enemy,
For when he strikes a blow,
Two hearts are pierced and perishing—
A household striken low.

Oh give to us thy sympathy,
Awake thine arm of power,
Shake off the nations' apathy,
Proclaim the battle hour.

'Mr. Hill,' said Mrs. Judge Ashman, 'we propose to stay here till you thrust us forth with violence.'

'Let him try that if he dares,' cried a dozen voices from the crowd.

Hill considered a few moments and then he said:

'Well, madam, I've thought it over, indeed, I thought it over before you came, for I expected this infernal movement would break out here. I have an establishment in New York State and they'll stand good whisky, such as I sell, there, to the end of the chapter. I'll go there for the present and stop selling here till this thunder gust blows over. This is the best promise I'll make if you stay here a mouth. So please vacate, and I'll put up my shutters.'

After a brief consultation the ladies concluded that it was the best they could do, and there were those of their number who wished to visit other saloons.

By this time the strain upon Mrs. Elliott's delicate frame had been too long and severe, and she grew very white and faint. Her husband had urged her to go home with him at once, but she had refused to leave her companions after having gained her own point. But now she sank helplessly in his arms and he carried her to an adjacent drug store, sent for a carriage and we were soon in the blessed refuge of her home.

But before an hour had passed her pulse grew quick and her cheek feverish. The husband hung about her in an angony of solicitude.

After doing what I could I left them thinking they were better alone.

When the evening shades gathered, as I was sitting in my room by the light of the fire, Mr. Elliott entered unannounced and said:

'O, Mrs. M., I fear Nellie is going to be sick,' and he gave way to such an agony of grief as I never saw convulse a man's frame before.

I came and put my hand upon his shoulder, but only said:

'God help you both.'

At last, he said, 'Now I'm better. Please stay with her while I go for the doctor.'

For a week Vinton and I have watched at Nellie's bed-side. Her mind has wandered all the time, and night and day she is pleading for and with her husband.

He has scarcely slept or ate. His raven hair is becoming streaked with gray; his ruddy cheeks are growing pale and wan, and his every breath is a prayer:

'God spare my darling.'

What the end will be, God knows.—Hearth and Home.

THE WIDOW OF MANSOUF.

A Persian Experience which Shows that Widows in that Country are as Acute as they are Elsewhere.

Abou ben Adhem was approached one hot morning in August, by a timid, nervous man, who, falling before him, implored him to show him some way by which he could escape a widow in his neighborhood, who was determined to marry him whether or no. He did not wish to marry her, for he had determined to wed another, yet this diabolical widow had so compassed him round about, that the marrying of another was well-nigh impossible. What should he do?

'My friend,' said Abou, removing his chibouk from his lips and tilting back in his chair, 'what says the poet:

"What can't be cured, love Must be endured, love."

Listen to the story of the widow of Mansouf:

Fatima was the relict of the departed Hooba, the maker of Kobashes, in the little village of Mansouf. Hooba had never been happy since the day of his marriage, till the morning of his death. He had been walking on a railroad track, and the locomotive struck him and knocked off one arm, both legs, and scalped him, and scalded him, besides inflicting other injuries upon him.

As what was left of him was on his bed, his friends asked him if he was suffering.

'Physically, yes—mentally, no.'

And his eyes wandered about the room till they lighted on Fatima, his wife.

'It may be hard for some of you to live,' he remarked; 'but you were never compelled to live with her.'

And he passed out with a smile of ecstatic peace and resignation and even joy upon his face.

From which it may be inferred that Fatima was not an agreeable person.

Fatima had a daughter who was passing fair, who rejoiced in the name of—well we will say—Zara. Zara was as beautiful as an houri. There was a beauty in her nose that was only surpassed by her eyes, and her eyes were only equalled by her mouth, and her face, as a whole, was not more perfect than her figure. In brief, Zara, the daughter of Hooba, was a stunning specimen of the Oriental female.

Could Zara with her peerless and matchless charms, be without a lover or live without love? It was not to be expected. She had lovers by the score, and the proud girl's principal amusement was to torture them, and keep them wiggling on such pins as she chose to impale them on.

But finally her heart was impaled. Hafiz, the son of the leather-dresser, Hamroud, saw her and loved her, and she loved him in return. It was an honest, true love, and therefore unending.

But Hamroud was not rich, and Fatima, the mother, was prudent; and when Hafiz demanded the girl in marriage, she said: 'Go to. Wouldst marry without a shelter to live in? Go thy ways—accumulate dirhems, and then come and ask me.'

'How many dirhems, mother!' asked Hafiz, sorrowfully, 'must I surround before I can call Zara mine?'

'When you can come to me and say, 'Lo, here are ten thousand dirhems which I have captured,' then will I give Zara to thee, and not till then. Away sluggard! if thou wouldst wear her, win her.'

Then Hafiz girded up his loins and went to far distant Khoordistan and joined him with a band of speculators who rode horses and carried pistols and muskets and sabres; and who borrowed goods of caravans, having first knocked the owners on the head that they might not say them nay.

Hafiz had industry, and he determined to get him the amount desired without unnecessary delay; and it is recorded that he made it warm for the caravans that crossed the desert that season. 'Made it warm,' is a Persian phrase, signifying that he went for them vigorously.

But while Hafiz was absent, Hamroud, his father, who had some years before been called upon to pay for a tombstone to the memory of his wife, fell into the habit of going to the house of Fatima, ostensibly, to bargain for the skins of the kids of her flock; but Fatima, who had eyes, observed that he tarried long where Zara was, and that when his optics rested upon her they glistened with something that was not produced by mediating upon the precepts of the Prophet.

Therefore she was not surprised when one day Hamroud came to her and demanded of her the hand of Zara in marriage. And to the surprise of the entire neighborhood, Fatima gave her consent, and directed Zara to get together her wedding things; and when Zara remonstrated, the old lady took an axe-helve and convinced her that the best thing she could do was to forget the son and marry the father.

'Foolish girl,' said the mother, 'the old man will die in a year—then you marry the son.'

'It is impossible that he should die in a year,' replied Zara. 'I have neither your looks nor your temper.'

But Zara was compelled to yield. And propositions were made for the nuptials, which were appointed to take place some six weeks after.

In the meantime the widow Fatima was not idle. I will not anticipate, but will merely remark that a messenger, mounted on a desert-born mare as fleet as the wind, set out for Khoornistan.

The night arrived. Zara was arrayed in her bridal robes, and Hamroud shone gorgeous in a new set of teeth, and a ready-made suit of clothes. He also had his hair dyed.

Just as the pair were taking their places on the floor, and the preach—that is the mufti—was getting ready to pronounce the ceremony, Hamroud's second son, Jimuel, entered the house with horror depicted on his face. He marched up to his senior.

'Father,' said he, in the old gentleman's ear, 'Hafiz is on his way here, and isn't more than two miles off. He hath about his person weapons of all kinds, and voweth vengeance upon you. Oh, father mine, what can you do to avert his wrath?'

The Aged Appropriator was, as you may suppose, smitten with a terrible fear. He knew his son, and knew that his wrath was a consuming fire. He was careless with pistols, and they were apt to go off in his hands.

'What shall we do?' he demanded of Fatima.

'I do not know!' she replied. 'Hafiz will kill all of us: beginning with you, and ending with me. Why, oh! why did I ever consent to your wedding with Zara!'

By this time the hoofs of Hafiz's horse were heard.

'Stay,' said Fatima, 'there is not a moment to be lost. Take your seat, Zara. Come hither, Hamroud. It is all a mistake that you were to marry Zara; it is I whom you are to wed. Can Hafiz object to your marrying with me? That is the only way to avoid the wrath to come. I will sacrifice myself to save you. Shades of my departed husband, forgive me! Come quickly.'

Hamroud looked at her and shuddered. But what could he do? The sound of the hoofs of Hafiz's horse was alarmingly distinct.

'Let it be so!' he said with a sigh.

And it was so. Hafiz thundered up to the door, and throwing it open, saw on the floor not his father and Zara, but his father and Zara's mother.

'Welcome home, my dear son!' exclaimed the old man. 'I have given you a new mother.'

'Not Zara?' he asked anxiously, and with some astonishment.

'Zara! My son, how can you be so absurd? Is not your parents head horizontal? Would be marry a chit yet in her teens? Go to.'

And Hafiz remarked that doubtless he was mistaken. But to guard against having his feelings so harrowed up again he thought he would marry Zara himself then and there, as the mufti was convenient. And as Fatima made no objection it was done.

It came to the knowledge of Hamroud afterward that Fatima had 'put it up on him,' as the Romans say. She sent the intelligence to Hafiz, and timed it so that he would arrive the very hour of the wedding. And when he heard this he consumed all the time between the intervals of putting patches on his bruised head, in cursing her.

He only lived with her a year. She was an intense woman, and her favorite weapon was a mop-handle; though she could hurl a scrubbing-brush with precision, and in the use of the pocker was unexcelled.

This is the legend. Now for the moral.

My son, if an enterprising widow is after you, surrender. Escape is hopeless. She will get you as sure as fate. A widow really in want of a husband knows no such words as fail. It isn't in her bright Lexicon of Youth. Surrender to her, and kill her afterwards, if you must. In the meantime avaunt, for my breakfast is ready.

And the stranger departed sorrowfully.

LOUSIANA.

Circumstantial Account of the Murder of the Negro Officials of Coushatta—They Resign their Positions and Agree to Leave the State—They are Butchered in Cold Blood.

SHREVEPORT, September 1.—Mayor A. F. Stephenson, of DeSoto parish, arrived here to-day, and furnished an account of the Coushatta troubles, which is no doubt substantially correct. It seems that in Red River parish, where the negroes are largely in excess of the whites, much apprehension and alarm have been felt by the latter on account of a threatened outbreak of the negroes, instigated, as was generally believed, by Edgerton, Dewees, Twitchell, Howell, Willis, Holland and others. The lives of several respectable white citizens of the parish had been threatened by the negroes, and a few days ago Mr. Williams, a respectable citizen of the Third ward of Red River parish, was attempted to be assassinated by two notorious and desperate negroes, near Brownsville, in the lower edge of the parish, he having been fired at by them with double-barreled shot guns. On last Thursday night, a small party of white men went to the cabins of these negroes with the view of arresting and lodging them in jail, when they were fired upon from the cabin and one of the party instantly killed. The negroes then attempted to run to the woods, when they were both shot and killed by the party attempting the arrest. On the next day (Friday) a large body of armed negroes, between three and four hundred in number, assembled near Brownsville, swearing vengeance against the whole white race and declaring that they would not leave a white man, woman or child alive in the parish. This created great apprehension and excitement at Coushatta and throughout the surrounding country, and on Friday night the roads leading into the town were picketed. Two young men, Mr. Joe Dickson and Mr. Pickens, who were on one of the posts, halted a negro who was coming into town with a sack of buckshot. He paid no attention to the summons to stop and ran off into the darkness, being fired at by one of the parties, without effect, however. They immediately went into the town to report what had occurred, and were returning to their posts when they were accosted in the streets of Coushatta by Homer Twitchell, and two notorious negro desperadoes, Andrew Bosley and Bob Smith, all of whom were armed. They had a few moment's conversation with them, not of a violent nature, and had turned round to proceed to their post, when they were fired upon twice by this armed party from the rear and without warning. Dickson was dangerously, if not mortally, wounded by this fire. He now lies in a very critical condition. Mr. Pickens escaped unhurt. The firing party than ran off, Bosley and Smith escaping altogether, and Twitchell for the time being. That night and next morning F. S. Edgerton, Homer J. Twitchell, R. A. Dewees, W. F. Howell, C. Holland and M. C. Willis, all white, besides a number of negroes, were arrested and placed under guard. All of the party who held office, then voluntarily tendered and wrote out their resignations, and they, with the others, voluntarily proposed that if a guard was furnished them to Shreveport, they would leave the State to return no more. This was at once assented to, and the prisoners requested Mr. John Carr, a reliable and trustworthy citizen present, to take charge of the guard for their protection. On Sunday morning, at ten o'clock, Mr. Carr, with a guard of about sixteen men, started with the above named prisoners, except the negroes released. Soon afterwards a party of between forty and fifty men, supposed to be all Texans, who had come into Coushatta, started in pursuit with the avowed purpose of lynching the prisoners. Later in the day Mr. Carr was apprised of this fact, and put his horses and those of the prisoners at the top of their speed to avoid being overtaken. While nearing the Hutchinson plantation, on Red river, some thirty miles below Shreveport, with the view of crossing there and destroying the flat-boat to prevent further pursuit, he was overtaken by the pursuing party, his guards overpowered and the prisoners taken away from him and three of them—Edgerton, Twitchell and Dewees—shot on the spot. Three—Howell, Holland and Willis—were carried back a short distance to near Ward's store and there shot. The citizens in the neighborhood assembled yesterday morning and buried them in the graveyard, near Hutchinson's plantation, and the last three on the spot where they had been killed, near Ward's store.

A REGIMENT OF WHITES REGULATING.

NEW ORLEANS, September 1.—The Governor has called out an extra regiment of State Militia, to be composed of picked white men. The orders were issued some days ago, in view of apprehended white league disturbances and the entire absence of United State troops from the State. Recruiting has been quietly going on, and it is stated that a number of ex-soldiers of both armies have volunteered. This regiment will be added to Longstreet's brigade, and will be used mainly to keep down disturbances in around the city.

Outrage and Murder.

Most Fiendish and Terrible Crime in Bedford County.

A most fiendish and terrible crime was perpetrated on last Friday, August 28th, by a negro named Albert Brown, upon the person of a child named Cora May Greenleaf, aged five years, a daughter of Milton Greenleaf, a farmer residing at Minnequa, Bedford County, Pa. The monster first violated and afterwards murdered her. A year ago the child's grandfather, Mr. Williams, gave employment to a destitute negro named Albert Brown. Brown had already served five years in the penitentiary for rape, but seemed truly penitent. He became an active member of the church and Sunday school. He was well informed upon religious topics, and few persons could quote Scripture with equal facility. Mr. Williams, the grandfather, and Mr. Greenleaf were near neighbors, and on Friday evening the child went over to her grandfather's house, her parents being absent. Unluckily her grandparents were away from home, and no one there but the negro Brown. Taking the child in his arms he carried her to his chamber, and despite her tender age succeeded in compassing his hellish purpose. To ever prevent certain disclosure he then took her grandfather's razor and cut his victim's throat, nearly severing the head from the body. Only the spinal column remained undivided, so murderous was the wretch in his intent. He then went to his employer's son to get money, but being told he had gone to Minnequa, a half mile distant, he started for that place, walking upon the railroad track. His mind filled with this bloody business, he was unaware of the approach of a freight train behind him until the engine struck him, throwing him to the side of the track and breaking one of his legs. He was taken up by the engineer John Betgar and brought to Canton, where his wounds were dressed. During the night the wretch frequently beguiled the time by singing hymns, and dispite his pain seemed in a religious and quiet frame of mind. At midnight the child's parents returned home, and knowing of the absence of the child's grandparents, at once began a search for their daughter. Very soon her fate was known. Her little dead body was found covered with blood. An inquest was immmediately held, and it was ascertained that her body had been outraged before she was murdered.

The news spread through the country like wildfire, and all day long people flocked to see the monster, who lay moaning in the bar room of a hotel. There was strong talk of lynching him, and at one time the rope was made ready and knotted for the purpose, but finally more moderate counsel prevailed. At six o'clock he was tied to a board and laid in the bottom of a wagon, and with his broken leg loose, hauled to Towanda, twenty-six miles, over a rough road. On Saturday evening he had recovered sufficiently from his injuries to be removed to jail and as the authorities were conveying him to Towanda, a party in disguise overhauled them and fired six or seven shots into the body of the prisoner, killing him almost instantly. The parties who took such summary vengeance on the brute are unknown. The atrocious crime and the terrible scenes that followed, have caused great excitement in this neighborhood.

On Sunday at noon the mutilated remains of this little victim were laid in the earth. Three thousand people attended the funeral. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Shepherd, who preached a most touching and eloquent sermon. When the coffin was lowered into the grave the schoolmates of the little girl covered it with flowers.

COSMOLINE

COSMOLINE is the concentrated extract of the healing properties of Petroleum, which are known. It is the most bland and soothing remedy ever used; beside possessing more healing power than any substance or compound ever prepared. It is for almost all the daily casualties which occur in household, the workshop, or on the farm, as well as for many of the diseases which afflict humanity.

Nature's Sovereign Remedy

FOR BURNS AND SCALDS

It is invaluable, cooling and soothing the injured parts at once, and producing a perfect cure in a very short time, without leaving any scars. For this purpose alone, it is

A BLESSING TO THE WORLD,

FOR FROSTED LIMBS, COSMOLINE is fully as efficacious as for burns and scalds, restoring a healthy action to the injured parts very quickly. It is also the best possible remedy for Chilblains and Chapped Hands.

FOR RHEUMATISM especially Inflammatory, most forms of NEURALGIA, swelling of Limbs or Glands, COSMOLINE affords in the shortest possible time the HAPPIEST RELIEF.

On CUTS AND BRUISES, the action of COSMOLINE is almost magical. If promptly applied, it prevents soreness, and the wounds heal very rapidly.

FOR PILES, it has proved to be an unequalled remedy, and many a sufferer has blessed the day of its introduction.

FOR SKIN DISEASES we can recommend it with the greatest confidence, especially for Salt-Rheum, Tetter, Eczema, etc., and Teething humours.

We might go on enumerating the many other conditions for which it is unequalled, but will only add that wherever there is inflammation from any cause, COSMOLINE brings a rapid and happy relief, and will be the dependence under all circumstances. COSMOLINE is Prescribed by the best physicians, both allopathic and homeopathic. It is but nature's own production, brought into an agreeable and pleasant condition, and is as safe to use anywhere as fresh cream.

HOUSEHOLD SURGEON'S

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE,

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL — PURELY — DR. WALKER'S — CALIFORNIA — EUREKA — VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, through out our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, [redacted] Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

THE PLATFORM.

Resolved—1. That the steady and large reduction of the State and National debts since the Republicans have had control of the State and National governments, and the equally steady reduction in taxation, as well as the high character for integrity in the State administration, are the best possible evidences that the Commonwealth and the country have been well and economically governed, and that the people have every thing to hope and nothing to fear from the continuance of the Republican party in power. The Democratic party, as it exists to-day, is the same party in aim, in principle, and in purpose, that it always has been. It has never retracted any part of the bad record it made both before and during the war, and it has never recanted any of the multitude of errors it has committed. It is the same party to-day that it was when it plunged this State almost hopelessly into debt, and burdened it with a heavy load of taxation; and the people having driven it from power on account of its transgressions and shortcomings, to restore it, with its numerous sins unrepented of and unatoned for, would be an indorsement of that which the people have so often and so thoroughly condemned.

2. The Republicans of Pennsylvania having been the first to demand a change in the Constitution that would abolish special legislation and all its attendant evils, and the necessary legislation for the call of a Constitutional Convention for that purpose having emanated from them, we are justified in rejoicing, to-day, over the accomplishment of that great reform and over the delivery of the State from the evil consequences of the old system.

3. The movement for the formation of the new Constitution having been made by the Republican party and carried to completion under its auspices, the task of putting in operation the machinery of the new fundamental law belongs to it, as it has been faithfully performed by it.

4. Inasmnch as great abuses have grown up in this State under our present system of fees as a compensation for country officers, we demand such legislation as will substitute adequate salaries for fees, and such as will allow

[redacted]

6. We recognize that as the true policy of government which shall harmonize all the diversified interests and pursuits, nessesarily existing in a country of such vast extent as ours, and as this can be done only by directing legislation so as to secure just protection and reward to every branch of industry, we are in favor of giving precedence to those measures which shall recognize agricultural, mining, manufacturing and mechanical pursuits as entitled to the amplest protection and fullest development; of putting a stop to large grants of the public domain to railroad corporations and reserving it for settlement and cultivation; of improving the navigation of our great inland rivers; of securing cheap transportation and profitable markets for the products of agricultural and manufacturing labor; of encouraging such manufactures as shall bring the producer and consumer in the neighborhood of each other, and thus to establish mutual relations between them and those engaged in commerce and transportation; of properly adjusting the relations between capital and labor in order that each may recive a just and equitable share of the profits, and of holding those in the possession of corporate wealth and privileges in strict conformity to the law, so that through combined influences people of varied pursuits may be united together in the common purpose of preserving the honor of the nation, and developing the immense resources of every section of the Union and of advancing the social and mutual prosperity of all its industrial and laboring classes.

7. The paralysis which has fallen upon the manufacturing industry of the country, within the past year, is a fresh evidence of the necessity of that Protection to our manufacturing interests for which the Republicans of Pennsylvania have always fought. The reduction of the Tariff, accompanied as it was by largely increased importations, not only helped to bring on the panic, but has rendered recovery from it more difficult as well as lamentably slow.

8. The attempt made, just prior to the adjournment of Congress, to establish Free Trade through the agency of a Reciprocity Treaty with Canada, demands the severest condemnation. It was an effort to accomplish through the treaty making power alone that which belongs properly and of right to the popular branch of the the government, and to put redress out of the government, and to put redress out of the people's reach for twenty-one years to come. The control over the subject of the national revenue was placed by the Constitution in the hands of the immediate representatives of the people, and we protest against any scheme to take it out of their hands by means of a treaty which the people cannot abrogate or repeal.

9. The frantic efforts now making by the Democratic party to bring on a war of races in the South, with the design of depriving a portion of its citizens of the rights which belong to them, show that the mission of the Republican party has not ended, and that its further continuance is necessary to secure equally to every citizen the rights which belong to all.

10. The establishment of the National bank currency ever before offered to them, the privileges of that system should be no longer confined to a privileged class, but should be free to all, under general and equal laws, the aggregate volume of the currency to be regulated by the necessities of the people and the recognized laws of trade.

12. We reaffirm the declaration of the National Republican Convention of 1872 in favor of a return to specie payments at the earliest practicable day.

13. That the Republican party continue to remember with gratitude the soldiers and sailors of the Republic for the patriotism, courage and self-sacrifice with which they gave themselves to the preservation of the country in the late civil war.

14. That entertaining the fullest confidence in the high personal integrity, ability and statesmanship of Governor John F. Hartranft, we unhesitatingly present him to our Republican friends throughout the Union as a candidate for nomination to the Presidency in 1876. His blameless and exalted character, as a man, his extraordinary ability as an administrative officer, the purity of his private and public life, and his splendid record as a soldier, all commend him to an enthusiastic and hearty support for a position which he is so well qualified to adorn.

15. That the General Government having determined that the one hundredth anniversary of American Independence shall be celebrated in the Metropolis of Pennsylvania, it becomes the duty of our Representatives in Congress and the Legislature to give their earnest support to such measures as will tend to the success of that great event; and we call upon the people of the Commonwealth to emulate each other in displaying the products of their industry and the resources of our State.

16. That the candidates this day nominated, in conjunction with the President of this Convention, be authorized to appoint the State Committee, and that the committee consist of two from each Senatorial district in Philadelphia and Allegheny county, two each from Chester, Montgomery, Berks, Lancaster, Dauphin, Luzerne and Schuylkill, and one from each of the other bounties.

OUR ASSOCIATED PRESS LETTER.

PHILADELPHIA, September 5, 1874.

CHARLIE BREWSTER ROSS.

The kidnapping of this four year old lad on the first day of July last, apparently by professional thieves with the view of extorting a large ransom from his parents, has afforded a fruitful theme for theoretical correspondents of sensational newspapers. As but little truth and much speculation have been given the public I am of opinion that the truth, without the theory, would be a novelty in this case highly acceptable to the reader, therefore I detail just what the father and uncle of the child said to me upon the subject. Both father and uncle entertain but one theory in regard to the kidnapping of the boy, which is: That the child was stolen in order to secure a large ransom for his return. In reply to statements published that correspondents, and detective Taggart, complain that Walter, who was with Charlie when he was stolen and who rode some distance with the party, is not permitted to be interrogated by any one upon this subject, the father said: I have never had any objections to the proper authorities conversing freely with Walter. In fact they do this almost every day; always whenever new developments arise in the case, they question him closely. But as Walter is a child under six years of age I do object to unauthorized persons especially newspaper correspondents, shadowing him continually; putting leading questions to him that a man could scarcely answer intelligently, and then publishing, not what the child says but what their own constructive minds imagine. I purpose retaining in the mind of the child, the events as they occurred, by not permitting his mind to be diverted therefrom by inquisitive persons out of mere curiosity, questioning him.

I asked Mr. Ross if he objected to Walter being taken to the District Attorney's office, a distance of about three squares, and in the presence of the District Attorney, questioned by detective Taggart. To this Mr. Ross replied: General Collis and Col. Mann have already examined Walter: they have a record of that examination, which I presume is at the service of detective Taggart. If Col. Mann, the District Attorney wishes to again examine Walter, I have no objections whatever.

In relation to the rumor that Mrs. Ross was a catholic, and Mr. Ross a protestant, and that the boy was taken for the purpose of giving him a monastic education, Mr. Joseph Ross, uncle of Charlie, stated: That Mr. and Mrs. Ross were both Methodists, that neither of them had ever been anything else, and that the first and only marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Ross was with each other.

The father of Charlie entertains serious doubts of the child's existence. He says the lad has always been accustomed to plenty of fresh air, and wholesome food; deprivation of these he believes, would induce summer complaint; to procure a physician would result in the discovery of the child; while not to do so might result fatally.

Mr. Ross says that he receives all sorts of letters upon the subject. Clairvoyants say they can tell just where the child is. Horoscopists write for a statement showing the day and hour in which Mr. Ross, Walter and Charlie were born, and from that they engage to compute the exact whereabouts of the missing child. A German in Harrisburg writes that he knows where Charlie is, and that for a sum of money he will forward to the father a piece of the child's clothing. One person went to the residence of Mr. Ross—some four miles from his store—took off a carriage wheel, placed a half dozen blades of grass upon the axle, replaced the wheel and began slowly turning it, with the the grass between the hub and axle, uttering an incantation and remarking that, every revolution of the wheel was bringing the child nearer home. The man then requested that the horse be harnessed to the vehicle and he would go in search of the boy. A vague suspicion crossed the mind of Mrs. Ross—her husband was at his store—that the fellow might forget to return, and the horse was not brought out, consequently he left indignantly murmuring at the caution which refused to furnish him cash and conveyance for a proposed journey after Charlie.

Mr. Ross is of opinion that if his boy is ever returned to him, these letters and the facts of the case will furnish an interesting volume for which any enterprising publisher would pay liberally.

The bridge story published in the New York Herald, which stated that the money was to be received for the child on a certain bridge, and the child returned to the father unaccompanied by any other person, was an invention of the creative mind of the Herald, correspondent. The story has given Mr. Ross a good deal of annoyance and has been a subject for prolific correspondence. One gentleman from Oregon writes a three page letter telling Mr. Ross to have an impenetrable coat of mail made, arm himself with several revolvers and when the parties return with the child, shoot them dead; the writer believes a man of nerve thus encased and armed might cope with a dozen child stealers. Another writes: Get the trunks of several large trees, hollow them out, place them carelessly along the approaching to the bridge, put men inside them armed with rifles and when the robbers approach blaze away at them. The tree trunks are to be halved so that their occupants can rise easily from them. Another writes: Dig holes in the ground, near the bridge sod them over lightly upon wire frames and when the robbers approach, let these armed men rise from their places of ambush and kill and capture the brigands.

One feature in this case that I do not like, is the conversation the brother of Mr. Ross had with Chambers, the correspondent of the N. Y. Herald, relative to the sale of the letters Mr. Ross has received upon the subject. Mr. Ross after briefly stating the character of a few of the letters, remarked to Mr. Chambers: These letters are very valuable and ought to be worth a good deal of money. Mr. Chambers replied that he had no doubt but the Herald would pay very liberally for them. To this Mr. Ross responded, what would you be willing to pay? Would you give a thousand dollars for them? Mr. Chambers said he would communicate with the Herald and upon receiving a reply he would be prepared to give an answer. The following day Mr. Chambers went to Mr. Ross and showing him a telegram, stated he was authorized to pay $500 for the letters. To that Mr. Ross made answer that he had no idea of selling them, he only wished to ascertain if they had a value and having done so his curiosity was satisfied and there the matter would end.

Mr. Ross' reasons for not making public the letters received, are: That in the opinion of the legal adviser of the Committee of Citizens who offered $20,000 for the apprehension of the thieves, their publication would not in any manner be of benefit, and it might do harm; that they are being used by detectives, who are opposed to their contents being made known.

The latest move in the case has been to place the whole matter in the hands of Pinkerton's detective agency. This has been done by the citizens who made up the purse of $20,000 for the apprehension of the thieves.

EX-GOV. ANDREW G. CURTIN.

In order to determine the question now in dispute between the Bellefonte Watchman, which says: "He is" and the Bellefonte REPUBLICAN, which says: "He is not" I determined to interview Ex-Governor Curtin, who has been on a visit to this city for a few days. For that purpose I went to Col. M'Clure's office and awaited his arrival. The tall form of the great war Governor soon presented itself, and here let me observe I never saw Governor Curtin looking more robust. The Governor himself appeared to be in an interviewing frame of mind for upon taking a seat he immediately remarked:

M'Clure, I notice by the papers that you have repented, and have been readmitted into the Republican ranks. How is it?

To this M'Clure quickly replied: Governor I perceive by the papers that you have lately joined the Democratic ranks. How is it?

Curtin—One is about as true as the other, I presume.

M'Clure—I imagine it is.

With this conclusive determination of the mooted question I conclude that the controversy between the two distinguished editors will cease. I will take occasion to say that if there are any two men in the Commonwealth who are in the habit of expressing themselves in plain English when they have anything to say it is Govenor Curtin and M'Clure.

I asked the Governor what he thought of Grant as a third term President. He responded: I presume that if Grant should again be elected President he would doubtless regard it as an honor and an office not to be declined.

Through the liberality of our citizens ten free excursions by railroad have been given the destitute children of our city. In all 13,529 poor boys and girls were made happy by these pleasure trips. The following is the aggregate of good things distributed to the little ones.

Ice cream, 2,660 quarts; gingerbread, 2,310 pounds; sponge cake, 1,660 pounds; sandwiches, 14,500; buttered buns, 14,300; bags of nick-nacks, 13,300; corn starch, 5,000 saucers; milk, 4,000 quarts; cups of tea, 6,000; ice, 5,000 pounds.

Yesterday the indigent old men and women were given a free excursion similar to those given to the children and 1,000 aged hearts were made to forget for a few hours the sorrows that oppress them. It was indeed a sad sight to see old men and women from 50 years of age up to the oldest man and oldest woman in the city thus made the recipients of charity, it was not unpleasant to hear the dames of 90 tell, over their cups of tea, how they used to do when they were girls. Our country was scarcely in its teens then. The oldest person attending this excursion was Thomas Taylor, born December 22, 1772 in St. Giles, London.

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company carries coal from its mines to Philadelphia a distance of about 100 miles—at the rate of about $1.20 per ton.

Wheat and corn are transported from Chicago to Philadelphia, by the Pennsylvania Railroad company, at an average rate of $11.55 per ton, the distance being 925 miles by rail.

From Pittsburg to New Orleans, via the Ohio and Mississippi rivers,—2400 miles—coal is transported in barges, and in very large quantities, during good stages of water for $1.60 per ton and the barges at these rates have paid as high as 20 per cent dividend per annum.

If the Philadelphia and Reading Company, which has the advantage of a canal from its mines to the market, were to carry coal at the same rates as the steam barge companies, the consumer would get his coal for 18 per cent less than now.

Judge Poland's Congressional district usually gives 5,00 republican majority. Judge was on last Monday overwhelmingly defeated for Congress. Judge Poland is the author of the press gag law passed at the last session. Deduction: In order not to knock Congressional persimmons take a Pole and break it all to pieces by hurling it against the newspaper press.

THE postponement of the Gift Concert of the Kentucky Public Library to November 30th, 1874, was resolved upon to make a full drawing a certainty. There will positively be no further postponement, and the great prize will be the magnificent sum of $25,000, no matter as to the tickets disposed of. Who will get it? What a pestered man Gov. Bramlette, of Louisville, business manager, would be, if people supposed he could tell! As it is, it requires an army of clerks to send off answers to the carloads of letters of inquiry the Library Association receives daily at the office in Louisville.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC TONIC SYRUP, FOR THE CURE OF CONSUMPTION, COUGHS AND COLDS.

The great virtue of this medicine is that it ripens the matter and throws it out of the system, purifies the blood, and thus effects a cure.

SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC, FOR THE CURE OF DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, &c.

The Tonic produces a healthy action of the stomach, creating an appetite, forming chyle and curing the most obstinate cases of Indigestion.

SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, FOR THE CURE OF LIVER COMPLAINT, &c.

These pills are alterative, and produce a healthy action of the liver without the least danger, as they are free from calomel, and yet more efficacious in restoring a healthy action of the liver.

These remedies are a certain cure for Consumption, as the Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter and purifies the blood. The Mandrake Pills act upon the liver, create healthy bile, and remove all diseases of the liver, often a cause of Consumption. The Sea Weed Tonic give tone and strength to the stomach, makes a good digestion, and enables the organs to form good blood; and thus creates a healthy circulation of healthy blood. The combined action of these medicines, as thus explained, will cure every case of Consumption, if taken in time, and the use of the medicines persevered in.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch Sts., Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed. Schenck's medicines for sale by all druggists. 34-3t

The Bar Room Remedy for all ailments is Rum Bitters, surcharged with Fusel Oil, a deadly element, rendered more active by the pungent astringents with which it is combined. If your stomach is weak and liver or bowels disordered, strengthen and regulate them with VINEGAR BITTERS, a purely VEGETABLE ALTERATIVE and APERIENT, free from alcohol and capable of infusing new vitality into your exhausted system. 32-4w

DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA! DYSPEPSIA!

Dyspepsia is the most perplexing of all human ailments. Its symptoms are almost infinite in their variety, and the forlorn and despondent victims of the disease often fancy themselves the prey, in turn, of every known malady. This is due, in part, to the close sympathy which exists between the stomach and the brain, and in part also to the fact that any disturbance of the digestive function necessarily disorders the liver, the bowls and the nervous system, and effects, to some extent, the quality of the blood.

E. F. Kunkle's Bitter Wine of Iron a sure cure. This is not a new preparation, to be tried and found wanting; it has been prescribed daily for many years in the practice of eminent physicians with unparalleled success: it is not expected or intended to cure all the diseases to which the human family is subject, but is warranted to cure Dyspepsia in its most obstinate form. Kunkle's Bitter Wine of Iron never fails to cure. Symptoms of Dyspepsia are loss of appetite, wind and rising of the food, dryness of the mouth, heartburn, distension of the stomach and bowels, constipation headache, dizziness, sleeplessness and low spirits. Try the great remedy and be convinced of its merits. Get the genuine. Take only Kunkle's which is put only in $1 bottles. Depot, 259 North Ninth Street Philadelphia.

For sale by all Druggists and dealers everywhere. 5-1m

THE most reliable remedy for Burns and Scalds is COSNOLINE. It is used in the Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia and by the best Physicians in the country. It affords almost immediate relief from pain, and the wounds heal rapidly without leaving any scar.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

MR. EDITOR.—We present the name of James F. Hale, Esq., of Bellefonte, for the Republican nomination as a candidate, for District Attorney, subject to the decision of the county convention. His nomination, we think would be eminently proper. He is a lawyer of ability and possesses all the qualifications requisite to fill the office with satisfaction to the county and credit to himself and party.

MANY REPUBLICANS.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—We wish to announce, through the columns of your paper, the name of Dr. J. M. Blair, of Unionville, as a candidate for the Assembly, subject to the rules of the Republican County Convention. MILLHEIM.

We are authorized to announce the name of D. S. Keller, Esq., as a candidate for District Attorney, subject to decision of the Republican County Convention.

We are authorized to announce the name of John Boozer of Potter Township as a candidate for assembly.

MR. EDITOR.—It is with pleasure that we learn that George L. Zeigler, Esq., of Philipsburg, is named as a candidate for the Assembly. Knowing him to be a staunch and active Republican, a man of high repute and in every way competent to make a successful and able representative, we favor his nomination. His personal manner and address, and his sympathy for and interest in the various industrial and manufacturing interests in the county are such as to constitute him a very popular candidate. His nomination would not be paying too great deference to his claims of that part of the county, which heretofore has been left very much in the cold: We hope the Republican party when it meets in Convention the sixth of October next, will honor and strengthen itself, by nominating him for Assembly. CITIZENS OF LIBERTY.

Grain and Flour Markets.

BELLEFONTE, Sept. 7, 1874.

The general apathy that we reported last week still exists in our grain market. This is a great measure, is owning to the farmers being busy with their fall crops. The price also being below sellers' ideas, has something to do with the small rates. Wheat for Eastern shipments is worth as much in Chicago, Milwaukee, Toledo, and other western points as it is in Bellefonte; which is owing to the low rates of freight from those points compared with what it is from here. It is claimed by some of the buyers here that western corn be delivered in Bellefonte at 80@85c and white oats 32 cents per bushel. Our quotations for wheat and corn to-day are from prices actually paid since our last issue.

Philadelphia Market Report.

Monday, Sept. 7, 1874.

REMARKS—There has been very little improvement in trade circles since our last, and financial affairs continue in pretty much the same position as noted for some months past. There is a considerable movement of currency westward for the transfer of the crops, but the amount is not of sufficient volume to disturb the serenity of the market. The manufacturing interest, with few exceptions, is dull, and the general distributing trade is very slowly reviving. The aggregate business up to this time does not meet the expectations of the more sanguine, but trade is on a remarkably good foundation. There has been an immense amount of indebtedness liquidated during the past year, and as the stock of goods have been permitted to run down to very low figure through the universal desire of economy and retrenchment, the business interests of the country are at more liberty to engage in extensive operations than for a long period.

WHEAT—Supplies continue to pour in quite freely but the market has been a little active and part of the late decline has been recovered. The millers have purchased to very moderat extent, but orders for shipment have been limited. The bulk of the receipts were contracted for in the West, and for direct export. Sales of 30,000 bus of Penna. Red at $1.20@1.24; 35,000 bus of Indiana and Ohio do at $1.15@1.24½; —chiefly at $1.20@1.22, in the Elevator and f. o. b.; 400 bus Indiana do, fair quality, at $1.12½; 20,000 bus good and very choice Indiana Amber at $1.21@1.20; and 4,000 bus choice Michigan White at $1.35@1.40; also 25,000 bus No. 2 Milwaukee, and 30,000 bus Western Red on secret terms. To-day the market closed firmer, with sales of 28,000 bus Indiana Red at $1,22@1,24; 1,200 bus Indiana and Ohio do at $1.20; 3,600 bus do Amber at $1,26@1,30; 1,200 Indiana Hill at $1.22; and 400 bus Western White at $1.35. Receipts for the week 133,100 bus.

OATS—There has been rather more activity, and prices are 2c higher. Sales of 32,200 bus Western White at 52c, up to 54c; 800 bus do do, fancy, at 55@57c, and 8,800 bus Western dark and light mixed at 48@52c. To-day the market closed with a better demand, and prices again advanced 1@2c, with sales of 3,500 bus Western White at 56@58c; 700 bus Western stained at 56; 700 bus Western White, choice, at 60c, and 1,400 bus Western light mixed at 59c. Receipts for the week, 62,100 bus.

BROOM CORN—Attracts but little attention. Small sales of Red Topped at 6@7½; Stalk Braid at 8@9c; and Hurl at 9@10c.

RYE—Comes in slowly, with further sales of 1,200 bus of Penna at 96@97c. Receipts for the week, 300 bus.

CORN—The receipts and offerings are small and the demand good, closing at an advance of 2c. Sales of 32,000 bus Southern, Penna. and Western Yellow at 86@88c; and 55,000 bus Western high mixed at 84½@87—mostly at 86@86½c. To-day the market closed active, and with telegraphic advices of a further advance of 1s 3d in Liverpool, holders have put up their prices 2c. Sales of 1,600 bus Penna. and Western Yellow at 90@; 400 bus Delaware do, cut, at 88c, and 3,600 bus Western mixed at 89@90c. Receipts for the week, 88,200 bus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is [at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will present the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous, and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit, but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

Agricultural.

☞ NOTE.—We earnestly desire that this department of our paper shall be made as useful as possible to our Agricultural friends, and therefore extend a cordial invitation to all parties interested, to favor us with contributions. Individuals who have made useful experiments and yet do not feel competent to write them out in form for publication, if they will favor us with the results we will take pleasure in putting them in proper shape.

Profitable Farming.

A correspondent of one of our agricultural contemporaries says:

I was formerly a carpenter and builder; made a few thousand dollars by hard work and successful jobbing; came upon a farm in 1865; had the good fortune to pay for the farm before I moved on it, and foresight enough not to run into debt afterward. Well, I thought farming ought to be as good as carpentering, and as I owned the farm, ought to give us a living, with hired labor, by superintending, as my jobbing did. But after paying for the labor on a few crops I was undeceived, finding that the labor at ordinary rates, absorbed the value of a common grain crop, leaving little or nothing to the owner of the farm. I found that this was true not only of grain raising, but of stock raising and the dairy. I soon discovered that a farmer must not only own his farm, but he must do most of his own work beside—that it must have been the farmer against whom the "sweat of the brow" was denounced; as the larger his farm, the poorer he would be if he depended upon hired labor. What is the reason for this state of things?

The reason is, primarily, that he did not understand the business. If he had rented his farm to one who did, he would have got a good interest for the cost of his farm, and probably the tenant would have made a good living besides. We suspect that if a farmer were to sell out his farm and buy out a carpenter and joiner business, the experience would be the same as this carpenter found with his farm. It is chiefly from such experiences as these that come the cry that farming does not pay. The answer to this correspondent's query, however, puzzles us some. It is as follows: "The farmer sells his produce for less than it costs, and the mechanic does not. The mechanic takes into consideration the cost of his manufacture, both in labor and material, in fixing a price, and when he cannot get a price covering all these items, with a small margin of profit, he ceases to produce. But the farmer never takes cost into account, and never seems to suspect that he can do otherwise than to sell at such prices as the market offers him. An intelligent co-operation will remedy all this. When farmers shall study the cost of their products, supply and demand, co-operation will then put them on an equality with other industries."

It is hardly true that there is more study of cost with the ordinary mechanic than with the average farmer. Neither in selling take into account any fixed price, but both get all they can. It is the law of supply and demand which regulates price, and not the cost of the article. If there is more grain produced than people want, prices fall. If there is a scarcity, prices rise; and this is just as true of a piece of carpenter work as of a field of grain. If there are a dozen houses to rent, and only one tenant seeking a house, rents will probably fall. If ten tenants to one house, he who pays the highest gets it. The business world, indeed, is a sort of auction mart, in which the highest bidder gets the house. To be sure, a sort of combination may keep up prices to a certian degree; "corners" like this every once and a while happen, but one is as likely to lose in these games as to win. The only true rule of success in farming is first to understand the business, and second (which is a part of the first) to guard as much as possible against over-production.

Beetles and Bugs.

There is much talk in the papers about the potato "bug," and some curious advice about remedies. In the first place the insect does not belong to the "bug," but to the "beetle" family. There are many people who will say that it makes no difference whether we call this insect a bug or a beetle, so long as people know what we mean. In one sense this is right; yet it is the universal experience that inaccuracy in time is bound to make trouble. In fact it is chiefly because of the general slipshod way of talking of things, that there is so much difficulty writers and speakers find in being properly understood. The use of wrong expressions, because they are in the particular case as good as the right ones, become a habit, and they are used when they are not as good, and it is then that the trouble comes in. In the case of 'bug' and 'beetle,' there is little excuse for use of the wrong term, as it cannot be plead that beetle is a jaw-breaking name. It is quite as easy as the other. All those insects which have hard outer wing cases are known to scientific men as Coleoptera, and are popularly beetles. The Colorado potato insect belongs to this class, and is a beetle, not a bug. The immature insect is the larva, and is as much if not more destructive than the parent beetle.

In remedies the same looseness of expression exists. Here before us is 'recipe' for killing them, which calls for sulphuric acid diluted with fifty times its weight of water. As no one in practical affairs handles water by weight, it leads to confusion. It was as easy for the writer to say ten pounds of acid to about one hundred gallons of water, which would have been perhaps in the proportion intended. It may be that, in some cases, this plan would do good. We do not know whether it is the result of practical observation, or a mere "recipe" offered because it is probable by some one who knows the influence of this article on animal life. If it is a genuine practical fact, it may be useful where water is easy to handle; but it would be a hard and slow process to carry water over distant and extensive potato fields; and we think the old remedy of Paris green, mixed with ashes or plaster, as often stated in these columns, would be more practicable than any watering plan possibly can be.

Experiments with Fertilizers.

John I. Carter, the efficient Superintendent of the Eastern Experimental Farm, West Grove, sends us the following tables showing the result of experiments made with fertilizers on grass. The first was,

AN EXPERIMENT TESTING DIFFERENT FERTILIZERS ON GRASS IN 1874.

Plots containing $\frac{1}{8}$ of an acre were laid out on ground in wheat last year, seeded to timothy and clover, the grass well set though principally clover. On April 10th, 1874, the following fertilizers were sown at the rate of $9.00 worth per acre, except the plaster and salt. The grass was cut June 26th, and was put up in good condition June 27th, resulting as follows:

		Lbs. of fertilizers.	Lbs. of hay.
Nothing			610

Additional experiments were made with plots upon which fertilizers were used when they were in wheat. These plots were retained to test the continued action of the fertilizers. The third column shows the yield of wheat in 1873 on these plots. Plots contained one-eight of an acre.

In another field, on thin ground, where a peach orchard had previously stood, were plots testing manner of plowing. When plowed for corn eight plots were subsoiled sixteen inches deep. Eight plots were plowed six inches deep. When plowed for wheat the subsoiled plots were plowed with a double Michigan plow, twelve inches deep; the other plots with common plow six inches deep, other treatment alike in all respects.

JOHN I. CARTER, Supt.

—The celebrated trotter Goldsmith Maid was shod in Springfield the other day, and the nails from the old shoes were carefully preserved for watch chains by those who happened to be around on the occasion.

In our article last week on Messenger Duroc we state that he is fifteen hands high, which is an error. He is sixteen hands high.

Paragraphs for the Farmer.

—The farmers in some of the southwestern counties of Minnesota are making preparations to burn peat next winter.

—At a trial of the Parvin steam-plough at Sacramento, recently, four acres were well ploughed in two hours. The California Farmer is confident that, ultimately the steam-plough will prove a success, and be a grand helper in the advacement of agricultural labor and enterprise.

—Henry Stephens, the celebrated farmer and agricultural writer, died at his home near Edinburgh, July 5th, at the age of eighty years. He entered upon the work and study of rural life from pure love of the pursuit, and wrote several interesting and valuable works relative to his calling, among them the well-known and popular "Book of the Farm," a work that has been translated into most of the languages of Europe. Few men since the days of Tull and Authur Young have done more to advance the science of agriculture than did Henry Stephens.

—Mr. Anderson McDonald, of Lumpkin county, Kentucky, has gathered from a quarter of an acre planted in onions, nine and one-half bushels of buttons and twenty-five bushels of large, fine onions, and has on the same ground planted sixteen hundred cabbage plants. Estimating the onion sets at $6 per bushel, and the onions at $1 per bushel, makes the value of the crop already and gathered, $83.50, The cabbage crop yet to come, will, at ten cents per head, yeild $160, making the total product of this quarter of an acre, $234.50, which looks like profitable farming.

—A Suffolk gentleman was awakened about midnight recently by a lady member of his family, who, in great alarm informed him that a robber was at his chicken pen. He jumped out of bed, seized his gun, rushed frantically to the door, saw the man, (or supposed he did,) and fired. He then retured and procured a light, and went out to see the effect of his shot. A post standing by the coop was "peppered," the cow had one eye put out, three chickens and a gobbler were killed outright and a coffee-pot which was sitting on the post was ruined.—Virginia paper.

—A correspondent of the Journal of Agriculture writes as follows: "Having read in your paper of the profit on a small flock of sheep, I send you an account of twenty sheep kept by my father during the season of 1873. He raised twenty-five lambs from the twenty sheep, twenty-two of which he sold July 1, at ten cents per pound; they all weighed 1,486 pounds. One lamb, weighing only sixty-two pounds, was sold at 8 cents per pound. In Jun ehe sold seventy-three and a-half pounds of wool at forty cents per pound, and we have two lambs left, worth $5 each, making the receipts from twenty sheep $482.96, or $9.65 per head. In summer these sheep run in pasture with plenty of grass and water. In winter they are fed what good hay they will eat until about the first of March, when the lambs come, and then get four quarts of flaxseed meal per day for six weeks.

—The largest sheep owner that the Highlands ever knew was Cameron of Corrichollie, now dead. He was once examined before a committee of the House of Commons, and came to be questioned on the subject of his ownership of sheep. "You have some fifteen hundred sheep, probably, sir?" said the interrogating M. P. "Aiblins," was Corrichollie's quick reply, as he took a pinch of snuff—"aiblins I have a few more nor that." "Two thousand, then?" "Yes, I believe I have that and a few more forpye," calmly responded the Highlander, with another pinch. "Five thousand?" "Oh, ay, and a few more." 'Twenty thousand, sir,' capping with a burst his precious bid. "Oh, ay, and some more forpye," was the imperturbable responce of Corrichollie. "In heaven's name how many sheep have you, man?" burst out the astonished catechist. "I am no very sure of a thousand or two," replied Corrichollie, in his dry laconic way, and with an extra big pinch "but I'm owner of forty thousand sheep at the lowest reconing."

MEDICAL.

CHEROKEE REMEDY.

THE GREAT INDIAN DIURETIC.
INFINITELY SUPERIOR TO BUCHU.
Nine tenths of the human family suffer, directly or indirectly, at one time or other, from diseases or irregularities of the generative system, while the victims of indiscretion, and of quack treatment, are comparatively numerous.
The idea that patients cannot treat themselves successfully in these cases, has long ago been exploded. A good and reliable medicine, prepared by an experienced physician, from the original Indian Recipe, that is guaranteed to effect a SPEEDY AND RADICAL CURE.
can be as safely relied upon as the prescription of the most skillful practitioner. Such a medicine is the celebrated CHEROKEE REMEDY.
Full directions accompany each bottle, and if they are carefully followed, a quick and permanent cure is guarranteed. Price $2.00 per bottle.
THE CHEROKEE INJECTION, should always be used in conjunction with the Remedy for both incipient and obstinate cases of Gonorrhœa. Price $2.00 per bottle.
CHEROKEE CURE
for seminal weakness (spermatorrhœa), is a simple vegetable medicine that was used for many years in the practice of the physician who first gave the remedy to the public. It has effected cures that would scarcely be credited except on ocular evidence of the fact. Full directions, with pamphlet containing all particulars of symptoms, treatment, &c., accompany each bottle. Price $2.00 per bottle. Sold everywhere.
CHEROKEE PILLS.
These Pill are prepared expressly for the cure of those irregularities to which ladies are subject, and will be found safe, reliable and effectual, for the cure of Suppression, Green Sickness, Pain in the Back, Hysteria, Sick Headache, &c., &c. Price $1.00 per box.

Heimstreet's Hair Restorative,

OR INIMITABLE HAIR COLORING.
NOT A DYE.—Heimstreet's "Hair Coloring is not a Dye, and its operation is not by any chemical effect, but by a natural restoration of the glands, thus giving the hair the color it originally had.
NATURALNESS.—When the hair is dyed, its color is leaden hued and unnatural, but when restored by HEIMSTREET'S HAIR COLORING, its appearance is so perfectly natural that no one can detect the use of any Restorative.
STAINLESS. — While the Restorative acts promptly on the hair, it leaves no stain or mark whatever on the skin. It is composed of ingredients that form a perfect dressing as well as a coloring, so that no oils, &c., are necessary.
THIS MOST EFFECTIVE of all the Hair Restorers is for sale by all druggists at 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Numerous certificates from those who have used it are in the possession of the proprietors.

PARK'S BALSAM

OR WILD CHERRY AND TAR.
BALSAM.—Nothing is more soothing to the irritated membranes than the pure BALSAMS of which this medicine is composed.
WILD CHERRY.—The true bark of Wild Cherry is an unfailing specific for all throat and pectorial diseases.
TAR.—The wonderful healing properties of Tar when united with the other ingredients, render PARK'S BALSAM the most efficient Cough Medicine ever offered to the public.
CONSUMPTION. — The many cases of Consumption that have been cured justify us in the assertion that it is the very best medicine for that disease ever discovered.
CERTIFICATES OF CURES.
STEPHEN FISK, of New York, says his daughter had consumption, and terbucles had formed in her lungs. He was induced to try Park's Balsam, which effected a speedy cure.
T. EDWARD FLEET, of Brooklyn says, I think it is the best medicine for affections of the lungs I ever used.
G. S. FANCHER, of New York says, I feel fully persuaded that Park's Balsam has saved my life.
We have in our possession hundreds of certificates from others, and all of the same cheering import. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere.

EGYPTIAN
Rat and Vermin Destroyer

FOR EXTERMINATING RATS, MICE, WATER BUGS, ROUCHES, RED ANTS, &c.
STRENGTH.—When a Rat tastes the Egyptian Destroyer, his death warrant is signed, sure. It cannot fail to kill. It also creates great thirst, and the rat will search for water out of doors, and not die in his hole, to cause a stench that cannot be got out.
ATTRACTIVENESS.—Rats are the shrewdest of vermin. It is hard to get them to eat poison. An ingredient in the Egyption Destroyer is a perfect bait, and they are attracted rather than freightened be it. "Rats (not children) cry for it.
KEEPING SOFT.—People know how the ordinary Rat Pastes dry up and become useless, causing annoyance and loss. The Egyptian Destroyer is fully warranted to keep soft, fresh and effective in any climate for years.
SURE DEATH.—The Egyptian Destroyer kills every time. Hundreds of unsolicited testimonials are now in the hands of the proprietors, substantiating its great merits as the best preparation for destroying Vermin in the world. Be sure and ask for the "Egyptian," and take no other.
Put up in large glass bottles. Price, 25 cts. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

MEDICAL.

Wright's Rejuvenating Elixer.

For the restoration of Nature's forces. It gives new life and vigor to the aged, and causes the blood of youth to course through the veins. It effectually cures Impotency, Palpitation of the Heart, Loss of Muscular Power, Low Spirits, Disorganization of the Generative Organs, and all the train of ills that follow in the path of the transgressor of Nature's laws. Price $2 per bottle.
It will be readily understood that in the brief space afforded by the advertising columns of a public print, it is impossible to give all particulars of the diseases that may be cured by the CHEROKEE MEDICINES. That they are destined to become immensely popular is plainly obvious in consequence of their GREAT INTRINSIC MERIT.
The pamphlet and circulars that accompany the medicines give all the information which cannot be given here, and the remedies may be had of any respectable druggist.

ELAINE
AS AN ILLUMINATOR.
WHY IT IS THE SAFEST.
ELAINE will not explode while burning in a lamp, nor in any other way, as it does not contain any of the explosive compounds so frequently met with in the ordinary oil for illuminating. A lamp, filled with ELAINE, if upset or accidently broken, will not explode or burn. There is no position in which you can put a lamp filled with ELAINE, for common use, in which it will explode. As no other illuminator has such advantages of safety, ELAINE IS CERTAINLY THE SAFEST FAMILY ILLUMINATING OIL KNOWN.

Bellefonte and County.

——Sponges, great variety at Green's.

——A great balloon ascension will be one of the features of the coming Agricultural Fair.

——The old Methodist Church at Philipsburg, has been converted into a school-room.

——J. M., the aqueous Captain, will not lecture this winter; he makes his money in a different manner.

——We notice on the street a written advertisement reading as follows: "Found.—A laidies black get breast pin." We hope she will jet it.

——The Mountain City band has not yet succeeded in lifting the embargo on their uniforms and, consequently, they still remain in the Express office.

——Rev. C. W. Rishel of the Shippensburg State Normal school occupied the pulpit of the M. E. Church last Sunday, both morning and evening.

——A game of base ball was played on the 29th ult. between the Rangers of Howard and Videtts of Eagleville, which was won by the former by a score of 43 to 16.

Lost.—A small blue enameled Locket between Friend's Meeting House and corner of Spring and High streets. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at this office.

——Goethe it was who said that there was nothing more terrible than active ignorance and therefore we suppose he must have been acquainted with the editor of the Centre Hall Reporter.

——It is very fashionable in our day for ministers to take a vacation, and perhaps it is all right; but the devil don't get any, and if anybody has a right to complain of the heat, he has.

——Only a few more days, only a few more sunsets now, and the chilly atmosphere of Autumn will prevent the cattle from sleeping on our front door steps, except for a few hours in the middle of the day.

——The Sunday Schools of Unionville and vicinity will spend next Saturday in pic-nicing. A balloon that had strayed into that locality and was found in an exhausted condition, will be re-inflated and sent up that day from the pic-nic grounds.

——The New York Sun happened to get hold of one of Joe Fury's ink-slings on "Gandam," the Lock Haven hotel man, and published it as original, and the Lock Haven Republican re-produces it. This is not fair to Joe, because it was one of his most brilliant "slings" that the Sun tried to father.

——Over at Centre Hall the other day, in the rear of the Reporter office, we saw Simon Wolf and five other stout able-bodied men playing croquet, and within twenty feet of them Fred Kurtz was writing heavy editorial articles on the impoverished condition of the country and the villiany of the Republican party.

——Save some some nice productions of the farm or garden for the next county fair. Bring something new or novel from your shop, or store, or house or any place, so that you only bring something. Let the next fair be the best on record for old Centre. We suggest to the managers that they enlarge that race-course at once; there's time yet.

The Veteran Pic-nic.—The Veteran Club of Centre County, as previously announced, will hold a basket pic-nic in Green's woods, near Milesburg, on the 17th of September. The organization, of which Gen. Beaver is President and D. S. Keller Esq., Secretary, is composed of all honorably discharged soldiers and sailors living in the county. General Wm. H. Blair will deliver the annual address.

——Hon. Andrew G. Curtin with his family returned to Bellefonte on Wednesday last. The Governor looks very well—better than any time since his return from Russia. He was invited to deliver an address at the unveiling of the great Centennial Painting at Indianapolis, Indianna, on Monday last, but private business interfered. We see by the Erie papers that he is expected to deliver an address on the 15th, at the North Western Fair in Erie.

A Valuable Invention.—On last Thursday, at the invitation of Messrs. Austin Curtin and A. G. Curtin, Jr., members of the firm of C. Curtin & Co., we, with them and Mr. McClellan, Supt. of the Car works, visited two of the ore banks of the above company for the purpose of examining a new machine used to separate flint, sand other foreign substances from ore.

The first bank is about a mile below town near the old Fishing Creek road. Here the ore is so free from flint and other foreign substances as to require only the ordinary method of washing. The ore is a fine quality of brown hematite and is found near the surface. The quantity is inexhaustable and has been worked more or lees every year since 1820.

From this point we crossed over through farms of the Curtins and the Valentines, all of which abound in ore, until we reached a point from which we could count five working banks, all of which were within a radius of two and one half miles. Thence we drove to red bank where the new washer is used. The machine is called the Bradford Separator and is the only patent that has ever proved entirely successful. The inventor, whose name it bears, had it patented something over one year ago but it has proved so wonderfully successful that they are being rapidly erected in all the ore-producing sections of the State. With its aid, untold thousands of tons of ore can be utilized which, otherwise, would remain valueless. In the hope that some of the many now deserted banks may be reopened, we give below some idea of this new separator as it is used at Red bank. The motive power is furnished by a 25 horse power engine. Water is supplied by an artesian well two hundred and thirty feet deep. The washer is the same as used at other banks, is thirty feet long. After passing through this, the ore passes over an iron grate which separates and discharges the sand. Thence it drops into a revolving screen, having two sections. From the the first screen falls the fine particles of ore and flint. The larger particles pass to the second section and the medium sized particles fall, leaving nothing but the largest lumps of ore and flint. This operation makes three grades; the smallest size comprises all particles from fine dust to the size of a grain of corn; the second, from a corn grain to an inch; and the third any size above an inch in diameter. These drop into as many different heads called "jigs" the jig is a perforated bed or grate three feet long, twenty inches wide and about four inches deep. Each has a crank motion which makes one hundred and sixty strokes per minute. They all work in a bed of water which entirely covers them. The ore, being heavier, goes to the bottom and though the perporated beds, while the flint is washed over into a receiver. The flint and ore from the different beds are drawn out by revolving rakes. By this simple method, all flint and foreign matter, are entirely removed. The separator has a capacity for separating forty tons of ore per day, but the work is more perfectly done, with a less amount, and about twenty tons are averaged at Red bank. The advantages of the machine are at once apparent. A ton(2240 lbs) of iron can be made out of 3850 to 4260 pounds of ore,—this by actual trial. It saves the expense of hauling the foreign matter to the forge. A better grade of iron is made with less amount of coal, with less work and consequently less expense, the separator costs less than $2000,00. We advise the iron masters of Centre county to examine this wonderful invention for themselves, and be assured of its utility.

A County Bible Society.—On Sunday evening, August 30th, a meeting was held in the M. E. Church of this place for the purpose of organizing a County Bible Society. A large audience was present and a member of the American Bible Society delivered an excellent address on the necessity of placing Bibles in the hand of every family in the country where there are none now.

The society was organized by electing Dr. Calder of the State College, President, H. Y. Stitzer, Esq., of Bellefonte, Secretary, and S. H. Yocum, Esq., Treasurer. The object of the society is to have every family in the United States supplied with a Bible before the fourth day of July 1876. This they purpose to do by forming a branch society in every county in the Union, whose duty it shall be to see that all are provided.

——We have a report from a Unionville correspondent which states that the corn crop which in the earlier part of the season looked so sickly is turning out well and a more than average yield is expected. On account of the ravages of the Colorado potato bug the potato crop will be very short, and several thousand bushels of the tubors will have to be sent to Unionville to supply the demand this fall for home consumption.

——The new store block adjoining the 1st National Bank is rapidly approaching completion. When finished, that corner will be the solidest and handsomest in Bellefonte. When E. C. Humes does build he builds well.

——Glyser Water at Green's.

——The most reliable worm madicine is Green's Worm Expeller.

——We see it announced by posters on the street that "Seltzer's Aperient;" but we guess it means Ned Blanchard.

——Our Senior Editor has returned from his summer touring and will now hold the pencil with a firmer grasp, we suppose.

——Something wrong with his mind. Ellsworth of the Journal devoted nearly all his local page last week to the base ball business.

——A. O. Furst, Esq., who is the member of the Republican State Central Committee from this county, was present at the meeting of that body in Harrisburg yesterday.

——A son of Michael Kane, living at the Mine Bank, while playing with a loaded pistol, one day last week, accidently shot his little sister, the ball striking her hand and mangling it terribly.

——Thos. K. Hicks, who has charge of the amusements at the coming County fair, don't like the one-third mile track. Getting up good horse races on that track will be a turf job for Thomas.

——Our local friend across the way assures the public that a balloon will ascend from Bellefonte some time soon but what good is that going to do when Lewis Haas is out of ballast and Gotlieb Haag has gone to jail.

——The Journal says that sportsmen were out in full feather on Tuesday to inaugurate the deer season by bringing in a four or five prong buck apiece, but thus far they appear to have altered their intention, after viewing the situation.

Information Wanted.—Any one knowing of any of the descendents of Enoch or Jocob McVey, who moved to the neighborhood of Pittsburgh in the early part of this century, will learn of something of interest by addressing Box 181, Pittsburgh, Pa. Exchanges please copy.

——And now we notice that Andy Morrison has taken the position of chief clerk in the Bush House. Andrew is a hotelist to the manor born, and accommodating as any other Frenchman. He has a large acquaintance in this section of the continent and to them we would say: you'll find Andy at the Bush House.

——Sam'l E. Furst, Esq., attorney at law at Williamsport, was in attendance at our courts on Friday last session. Mr. Furst has an extensive practice in his own county, which is steadily growing out into other courts and counties, where he displays all the qualities of a lawyer and scholar. By the way the Furst family seem to be natural born lawyers, any way.

——We occasionally see on our streets some handsome turnouts, fine carriages and horses with drivers in livery, gold mountings and brass buttons, and beautiful creatures inside; but when we look at our faded wheelbarrow and old white hat, we hunt up the camel-and-needle parable and find melancholy satisfaction.

——Messrs. C. H. Else, and Bro. the well known Milesburg druggists have purchased the drug store of Mrs. C. G. Ryman, and the right to manufacture Ryman's celebrated family medicines. They have enlarged and renovated their store and renewed their stock, and will serve the public as usual with the best and purest of medicines, prepared only by competent and skillful hands.

——There was a fellow going around town, from house to house, yesterday offering to sell some kind of lottery tickets for a dollar apiece, which he would guarantee to draw a sewing machine or a carpet. We have not heard of any one who was foolish enough to buy; but no doubt he will find some who will invest, and lose their money. We have no hesitancy in saying that it is a scheme to cheat and the operator ought to be arrested.

Accident.—Mr. John Rote, of this place, took a hack to the camp meeting at Millheim on Sunday, 30th ult. While returning from the camp ground to Millheim with a load, in the evening, the driver of the hack ran over a root at a sidling place in the road, oversetting the hack and throwing Mr. Rote, who was on the seat with him, against a fence, the bed of the wagon crushing one of his legs and injuring the cap of the knee of the other. So says the Watchman.

——Judge Mayer's friends were surprised and gratified at his excellent healthful appearance, on his return to Lock Haven last week. He now weighs one hundred and seventy pounds, eats heartily, and is perfectly restored to good health. Of course he looks somewhat changed. The sunny skies of Italy, the health giving atmosphere of Switzerland or the delightful living in France, or all these combined, have metamorphosed his luxuriant, black beard into a darkish-blonde color, mingled with a slight sprinkling of gray. We're all glad you're back save and sound, Judge, and if you will come up to Bellefonte, your many friends will give you a hearty welcome.

Pleasant Gap.—On Saturday last we accepted an invitation to be present at a Sunday School pic-nic at the above named place. We arrived there before dinner and were kindly provided for by Mr. Gibson Larimer and spent an hour very pleasantly, strolling over his pleasant little farm, testing the luxurious grapes, peaches and apples, till we were summoned to the church. Here the members of the school, the visitors and others joined in forming procession and marched joyfully away to the neighboring grove. When the woods were reached the happy company struck up a familiar song and, as they filed down through the trees, the birds and squirrels were scared from their haunts and gave up possession for the day.

Here ample provision had been made for the day's enjoyment. Swings were plenty; other amusements were improvised; the older people devoted themselves to the amusements of the children and it was as impossible for a person not to enjoy himself as it was to keep hungry around those tables.

This brings us to the important feature of the occasion. A table was arranged forming two side of a triangle, each of which was several rods long. We always feel a deep interest in such things and so we strolled over to look at the ladies setting this quarter-of-a-mile table. There were piles of baskets on both sides and the baskets were large and when the lids were removed it was found that every basket was chock full. It took considerable time to make the transfer from basket to table, but it was an interesting spectacle to us, and we didn't care about going away.

Pretty soon the scholars came marching up two and two with Superintendent Weaver and Mr. Andy Swartz in the lead, all singing some delightful song. When they had all gathered around—and there was room for about as many more—the Rev. Galbraith of Centre Hall, called them to order, and implored the blessing of Heaven on the day's enjoyment. Then the fun began. We happened to get along with the preachers, and cheerfully add our testimony to the national fact that the divine stomach is capacious. Had there not been such a superabundance of eatables we would have despaired of satisfaction, for, on our right, was stationed Joe W. Fury, of the Watchman. He held his ground well. He never faltered till all the cold chicken, sandwitches, cakes, jellies, pies, pickles—everything within his reach was demolished. Then he borrowed Gibson Larimer's gold-headed cane and began to rake in the provender in earnest. His section of the table was speedily and often replenished, but he did his best to keep down the accumulation. Shortly after Jack Spangler and a couple of ladies came up, and then of course we had to hunt some other section where the conflict didn't rage so fiercely. An hour or more afterwards, we saw them sitting under a tree topping off with sections of a large water-melon.

After the dinner was finished, the company assembled on rustic seats that had been provided. Prof. Rishel and Rev. Galbraith sang some songs, after which addresses were made by the above named gentlemen and D. H. Hastings. Messrs. Spangler and Fury were called for but they were too full for utterance. Between times the school, under leadership of Mr. Swartz, with Miss Bible presiding at the organ, sang heartily and pleasantly.

The day was delightful and the celebration was a success. The ladies who prepared the tables had a big job but they did it well. Mr. Larimer was entirely indispensable and helped things along amazingly. Those good people out at Pleasant Gap know how to have a good time when they take a nation that way.

——On Monday evening we accepted an invitation to be present at the regular weekly meeting of the Murdock Literary society. We found a large attendance of the young men of the society, pleasantly located in the main room of the Y. M. C. A. The society paper was being read by Mr. Charles P. Cook, when we entered. The matter is all original, consisting of editorials, locals, poetry and other items. We were surprised and pleased at the taste and talent, as well as the tone of the productions of the contributors. Mr. Charles Schroyer, the editor of that edition, must have given much time and study to have acquitted himself so creditably. After the paper was read, declamations, readings and addresses followed. All the exercises were pleasant and interesting. How much better for these young men it is to spend their evenings and spare time in this most profitable manner, than to idle them away in the forming of idle and viscious habits. We commend the example of the Murdocks to the young men of every town and township in the county.

"School in the Mountains" at Bellefonte, Pa. will begin its next session on Wednesday, September 9th. Pupils thoroughly prepared for college, the scientific schools, or a business life. For circular address 30-6t Rev. J. P. Hughes, Principal.

——Canary birds and cages at Green's ——Corn pencils at Green's.

——I. P. Campbell, Esq., was admitted to the bar of Lycoming county on Saturday. The committee of examination consisted of Messrs, Parson, Reighard and Allen, and these gentlemen found that Mr. Campbell had studiously applied himself, the examination being of a highly creditable character. For two years he has read law in the office of S. E. Furst, Esq., and diligently labored to prepare himself for the responsible duties of an attorney. A native of Centre county, his many friends in this locality will rejoice to hear of his success. He is a young man of more than ordinary ability, and we bespeak for him a successful future in the legal field.

——The present drought has continued so long, that the farmers have been prevented in a great measure from getting in their fall crops as soon as they otherwise would have done. The ground is so dry that the drills and harrows stir up clouds of dust in passing over the plowed fields. We notice that the best farmers in the county are rolling the fields after the crops have been planted. This plan is highly recommended by the most eminent farmers as indispensable in a dry time. The roller if heavy enough, breaks the clods and compresses the earth to the cereals after which the moisture reaches the grain more rapidly than it could through the loose earth. This principle will apply to all seeds in a dry season.

——The following tale shows what will happen over in Clearfield county when a man has been working up the primaries for Wallace. David Meese, living in Decatur township, was electioneering with a man who was chopping a hemlock log, when the axe struck a knot, and a sharp fragment of the knot struck him in the right eye cutting through the corner. Medical attention was necessary, and it will require some skill to preserve the sight of the eye. On the same day—Tuesday—one of his little children, a boy, burned his knee quite severely, and his little daughter fell, striking her head upon the sharp corner of a rock and inflicting a scalp wound some two inches in length, making quite a chapter of accidents for Mr. Meese's family.

We are indebted to the Journal only for the facts in the above.

——There's a little room around the corner of the Bush House, where a man fixes up old stove-pipe hats so that they look about as good as new. Every old plug in town was brought out for this man to burnish and there's more top-loftical style in Bellefonte now than there has been for years. Mr. Furguson had his tile done over and wore it to church last Sunday. He placed it down carefully just outside the pew in the aisle. Presently Mrs. Stevens entered and as she proceeded up the aisle her abounding skirts scooped up Furguson's hat and rolled it up near the pulpit, Furguson pursued his hat with feelings of indignation, and when Mrs. Stevens took her seat he walked back brushing his hat with his sleeve. A few moments later Mrs. Hopkins came into church, and as Furguson had again placed his hat in the aisle, Mrs. Hopkins skirts struck it and swept it along about twenty feet and left it lying on the carpet in a demoralized condition, in fact looking worse than before Furguson had paid seventy-five cents to have it renovated. Furguson was singing a hymn at the time and did not miss it. But a moment later when he looked over the end of the pew to see if it was safe, he was furious to perceive that it was gone. He skirmished up the aisle after it again, red in the face and uttering sentences which were horrible out of place in the sanctuary. However he put his hat down again and determined to keep his eye on it, but just as he turned his head away for a moment Mrs. Climax came in, and Furguson looked around only in time to watch the hat being gathered in under Mrs. Climax's skirts, and carried away by them. He started in pursuit, and just as he did so, the hat must have rolled against Mrs. Climax's ankles for she gave a jump and screamed right out in meeting. When her husband asked her what was the matter, she said there must be a dog under her dress, and she gave her skirts a twist, out rolled Furguson's hat and Mrs. Climax, being very near-sighted, thought it was a dog and immediately kicked it so savagely that it flew into the gallery and lodged on the top of the organ. Furguson, perfectly frantic with rage, forgot where he was, and holding his clinched fist under Mr. Climax's nose, he shrieked, "Iv'e a mind to bust you over the snoot." Then he flung down his hymn book and rushed from the church. He went home bare headed and the sexton brought his humiliating hat around after dinner. After this Furguson intends to go to the Quaker meeting, where he can say his prayers with his hat on his head.

—The general impression seems to be, that the third party movement lately started in Missouri, the real object of which is to secure the re-election of Carl Schurz to the Senate, will not amount to much.

NEW YORK.

New York, Sept. 7, 1874.

The answer of Henry Ward Beecher to the complaint of Theodore Tilton was received to-day by Beecher's attorneys, and was at once served on the plaintiff. Together with the answer was served from the office of Tracey, Catlin and Brodhead, a notice of trial for the term of the City Court beginning the third Monday of September. The defendant answers to the complaint.

1st. That each and every allegation in said complaint contained, except that plaintiff and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Richards were married on October 2, 1855, and lived together as husband and wife up until 1874, is utterly false.

2nd. That this defendant never had at any time or at any place any unchaste or improper relations with the wife of the plaintiff, and never attempted or sought to have any such relations.

(Signed) ——— ———.

Sherman and Sterling, Attorneys for defendant.

Beecher's affidavits accompanying the answer were dated Twain Mountain, New Hampshire, and are arrested before New Hampshire officials. Services are acknowledged by Tilton's attorney. A counter notice of trial was at the same time served by Morris and Pearshall upon Shearman and Stearling, who also admitted service thereof.

LETTERS OF CONDOLENCE AND SYMPATHY.

The Christian Union of this week says: "Ever since the public accusation Mr. Beecher's mail has borne a most singular and wonderful testimony to the steadfastness, purity and strength of that faith which a long, consistent life of goodness inspires. It often numbers sixty or seventy letters per day. It comes from every part af America, and, indeed, of the world. Many of these letters are from old political enemies, many from places where once his name was execrated. And it is also worthy of mark, that members of all denominations have joined in the tribute.

Even so staunch a Democratic paper as the Louisville "Courier-Journal" exclaims, in hopeless despair at the folly of its Southern allies: "We give it up. There was a chance that the next House of Representatives would not be Radical; that chance is gone. The outbreaks in Kentucky and the massacre in Tennessee settle that much. No people, no party, could stand under such a load as the people of the South and the Democratic party of the North are forced to carry. It is well to be plain. As surely as the South begins to get on its feet do its madmen proceed to kick the fat in the fire. The Radicals only want pretexts; the South supplies them. A war, or the appearance of a war, of races seems inevitable; and that is itself a third term under prospective auspices. That is the overthrow of Republican Government, but chiefly at the expense of the South."

—For the information of the "Watchman" we are glad to say that the Centre County Republicans are wide awake for the coming contest. They don't believe in spending a whole season in a political contest.

VOTERS, ATTENTION!

All voters must pay their taxes thirty days before election. See to it at once, you will not be allowed to vote if your taxes are not paid.

Centaur Liniment

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling they will not subdue, and no lameness which they will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. They have produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts scalds, burns, salt-rheum, earache, &c., &c., upon the human frame, and of strains spavin, galls, &c., upon animals in one year than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. They are counter-irritant, all-healing pain reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless, and the wounded are healed without a scar. The recipe is published around each bottle. They sell as no articles ever before sold, and they sell because they do just what they pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling, deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chronic rheumatism, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for spavined or sweenied horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.
